years of Hill's published criticism in a revised final form and also adds much new work. It will serve as the canonical volume of criticism by Hill, the pre-eminent poet-critic whom A. N. Wilson has called probably the best writer alive in verse or in prose. In his criticism Hill ranges widely, investigating both poets including Jonson, Dryden, Hopkins, Whitman, Eliot, and Yeats and prose writers such as Tyndale, Clarendon, Hobbes, Burton, Emerson, and F. H. Bradley. He is also steeped in the historical context, political, poetic, and religious of the writers he studies. Most importantly, he brings texts and contexts into new and telling relations, neither reducing texts to the circumstances of their utterance nor imagining that they can float free of them. A number of the essays have already established themselves as essential reading on particular subjects, such as his analysis of Vaughan's The Night, his discussion of Gurney's poetry, and his critical account of The Oxford English Dictionary. Others confront the problems of language and the nature of value directly, as in Our Word is Our Bond, Language, Suffering, and Value, and Poetry and Value. In all his criticism, Hill reveals literature to be an essential arena of civic intelligence.

Collected prose. Vol. 2 Roger H. Lawson, 1972. The Collected Prose of Robert Frost Robert Frost, 2007. A collection of prose written by American poet Robert Frost between 1891 and 1963.

Collected prose, 1972. Machine Art and Other Writings Ezra Pound, 1996. Machine Art and Other Writings documents the wide proportions of Pound's polemic against the abstractions of modernism and reveals the extent to which he was at odds with the metaphysical assumptions of his time. The volume edited by Ardizzone is the result of years of systematic and intensive study of Pound's manuscripts, including glosses from the texts of his personal library.

Mystic Moderns James H. Thrall, 2020-01-21. Mystic Moderns examines the responses of three British authors: Evelyn Underhill (1875-1941), May Sinclair (1863-1946), and Mary Webb (1881-1927) to the emerging modernity of the long, early twentieth-century moment encompassing the First World War. As they explored divergent but overlapping understandings of what mystical experience might be, these authors rejected claims that modernity's celebration of the secular and rational left no place for the mystical; rather, they countered, sensitivity to a greater reality could both establish and validate personal agency and was integral to their identities as modern women. Their preoccupations with the dynamism of human connection drew on prevailing ideas of vital energy or life force developed by Arthur Schopenhauer and Henri Bergson in ways that channeled modernity's erotic energy of change. By using their fiction to describe new self-authenticating forms of mysticism, separate from either the prevailing orthodoxy of establishment Christianity or the extreme heterodoxy of their era's enthusiasm for paranormal experimentation, they also contributed to the rise of a generic concept of spirituality. Mystic Moderns thus offers historical perspective on contemporary claims for self-constructed, non-institutional spiritual experience associated with the claim "I'm spiritual, not religious." Working as they did within the shadow of the First World War, Underhill, Sinclair, and Webb were, in the end, attempting to determine what might be of authentic value for a modern age marked by ubiquitous death. While not themselves utopian authors, each was touched by her era's complicated hunger for the best of all possible worlds. Their constructions of how an individual should be and act in the midst of modernity thus simultaneously projected visions of what that modernity itself should become Complete Poetry and Collected Prose Walt Whitman, 1959 Warren, Jarrell, and Lowell Joan Romano Shifflett, 2020-06-03 Robert Penn Warren Randall Jarrell and Robert Lowell maintained lifelong well documented friendships with one another often discussing each other's work in private correspondence and published reviews Joan Romano Shifflett's Warren Jarrell and Lowell Collaboration in the Reshaping of American Poetry traces the artistic and personal connections between the three writers Her study uncovers the significance of their parallel literary development and reevaluates dominant views of how American poetry evolved during the mid twentieth century Familiar accounts of literary history most prominently the celebration of Lowell's Life Studies as a revolutionary breakthrough into confessional poetry have obscured the significance of the deep connections that Lowell shared with Warren and Jarrell They all became quite close in the 1930s with the content and style of their early poetry revealing the impact of their mentors John Crowe Ransom and Allen Tate whose aesthetics the three would ultimately modify and transform The three poets achieved professional maturity and success in the 1940s during which time they relied on one another's honest critiques as they experimented with changes in subject matter and modes of expression Shifflett shows that their works of the late 1940s were heavily influenced by Robert Frost This period found Warren Jarrell and Lowell infusing ostensibly simple verse with multifaceted layers of meaning capturing the language of speech in diction and rhythm and striving to raise human experience to a universal level During the 1950s the three poets became public figures producing major works that addressed the nation's postwar need to reconnect with humanity Warren Jarrell and Lowell continued to respond in interlocking ways throughout the 1960s with each writer using innovative stylistic techniques to create a colloquy with readers that directed attention away from superficial matters and toward the important work of self reflection Drawing from biographical materials and correspondence along with detailed readings of many poems Warren Jarrell and Lowell offers a compelling new perspective on the shaping of twentieth century American poetry American Poetry since 1945 Eleanor Spencer-Regan, 2017-09-16 This book features a collection of essays on some of the key poets of post war America written by leading scholars in the field All the essays have been newly commissioned to take account of the diverse movements in American poetry since 1945 and also to reflect retrospectively on some of the major talents that have shaped its development In the aftermath of the Second World War American poets took stock of their own tumultuous past but faced the future with radically new artistic ideals and commitments More than ever before American poetry spoke with its own distinctive accents and declared its own dreams and desires This is the era of confessionalism beat poetry protest poetry and avant garde postmodernism This book explores the work of John Berryman Robert Lowell Elizabeth Bishop Adrienne Rich and Sylvia Plath as well as contemporary African American poets and new poetic voices emerging in the 21st century This New Casebook introduces the major American poets of the post war generation evaluates their achievements in the light of changing critical opinion and offers lively incisive readings of some of the most challenging and enthralling poetry of the modern era Collected Prose Paul Auster,2013-03 Paul Auster s Collected Prose is an essential collection from one of the finest thinkers and stylists in contemporary letters
