Nontimber Forest Products in the United States Eric T. Jones,Rebecca Jean McLain,James F. Weigand,2002

A quiet revolution is taking place in America s forests Once seen primarily as stands of timber our woodlands are now prized as a rich source of a wide range of commodities from wild mushrooms and maple sugar to hundreds of medicinal plants whose uses have only begun to be fully realized Now as timber harvesting becomes more mechanized and requires less labor the image of the lumberjack is being replaced by that of the forager This book provides the first comprehensive examination of nontimber forest products NTFPs in the United States illustrating their diverse importance describing the people who harvest them and outlining the steps that are being taken to ensure access to them As the first extensive national overview of NTFP policy and management specific to the United States it brings together research from numerous disciplines and analytical perspectives such as economics mycology history ecology law entomology forestry geography and anthropology in order to provide a cohesive picture of the current and potential role of NTFPs The contributors review the state of scientific knowledge of NTFPs by offering a survey of commercial and noncommercial products an overview of uses and users and discussions of sustainable management issues associated with ecology cultural traditions forest policy and commerce They examine some of the major social economic and biological benefits of NTFPs while also addressing the potential negative consequences of NTFP harvesting on forest ecosystems and on NTFP species populations Within this wealth of information are rich accounts of NTFP use drawn from all parts of the American landscape from the Pacific Northwest to the Caribbean From honey production to a review of nontimber forest economies still active in the United States such as the Ojibway harvest of plants recounted here the book takes in the whole breadth of recent NTFP issues including ecological concerns associated with the expansion of NTFP markets and NTFP tenure issues on federally managed lands No other volume offers such a comprehensive overview of NTFPs in North America By examining all aspects of these products it contributes to the development of more sophisticated policy and management frameworks for not only ensuring their ongoing use but also protecting the future of our forests

African Ethnobotany in the Americas Robert Voeks,John Rashford,2012-09-25 African Ethnobotany in the Americas provides the first comprehensive examination of ethnobotanical knowledge and skills among the African Diaspora in the Americas Leading scholars on the subject explore the complex relationship between plant use and meaning among the descendants of Africans in the New World With the aid of archival and field research carried out in North America South

America and the Caribbean contributors explore the historical environmental and political ecological factors that facilitated hindered transatlantic ethnobotanical diffusion the role of Africans as active agents of plant and plant knowledge transfer during the period of plantation slavery in the Americas the significance of cultural resistance in refining and redefining plant based traditions the principal categories of plant use that resulted the exchange of knowledge among Amerindian European and other African peoples and the changing significance of African American ethnobotanical traditions in the 21st century Bolstered by abundant visual content and contributions from renowned experts in the field African Ethnobotany in the Americas is an invaluable resource for students scientists and researchers in the field of ethnobotany and African Diaspora studies Bibliography of Agriculture with Subject Index ,1993-03 Tropical Forests of the Guiana Shield D.
