Beyond Postmodernism Klaus Stierstorfer, 2003 After the veritable hype concerning postmodernism in the 1980s and early 1990s when questions about when it began what it means and which texts it comprises were apt to trigger heated discussions the excitement has notably cooled down at the turn of the century Voices are now beginning to be heard which seem to suggest a new episteme in the making which points beyond postmodernism while it remains at the same time very uncertain whether what appears as newness is not rather a return to traditional concepts theoretical premises and authorial practices Contributors to this volume propose to explore new openings and recent developments in anglophone literatures and cultural theories which engage with issues seen to be central in the construction of a postmodern paradigm but deal with them in ways that promise new openings or a new Zeitgeist

The Postmodern Fantastic in Contemporary British Fiction Martin Horstkotte, 2004 This study looks at the complex relationship between postmodernism and the fantastic in contemporary British fiction and shows that a new type of the fantastic arises in postmodernism Arguing against interpretations that view postmodernism as inherently fantastic it seeks to define the postmodern fantastic as a narrative mode that is influenced by certain traits both of the traditional fantastic and of literary postmodernism but does not simply conflate both In the first theoretical part a number of theories of the fantastic and of postmodernism are used to set the fantastic apart from other non mimetic forms of literature and to create a model of the postmodern fantastic that postulates the totalisation of the fantastic in postmodernism In the second part of this study this model is applied to a number of contemporary British texts which are particularly susceptible to this form of the fantastic due to several characteristics such as their muted kind of postmodernism and their frequent construction of parallel worlds The analysis of these texts focuses on four thematic fields of the postmodern fantastic the figure of the other as defined by Bernhard Waldenfels time and history text and textuality and the development of the Todorovian pure fantastic Finally the question of the death of the fantastic in postmodernism is examined

Trauma, Postmodernism and the Aftermath of World War II Paul Crosthwaite, 2009-01-29 The radical postmodernist waves of experimentation that swept Anglo American fiction from the late 1960s constitute a delayed response to the upheavals of the Second World War yet the legacy of the war barely figures in prevalent accounts of the postmodernist movement As Paul Crosthwaite shows in this provocative book to recognize the significance of the war in contemporary culture is to acknowledge that postmodernism as a sensibility aesthetic style and mode of thought must be entirely reconceived Challenging dominant theorizations of the postmodern as depthless and dehistoricized Crosthwaite demonstrates that postmodernism has not abandoned history but has rather reformulated it in terms of trauma trauma that is traceable time and again to the catastrophes of the 1940s The book stages a revealing confrontation between influential theories of trauma and postmodernism and offers innovative close readings of key texts by Virginia Woolf Thomas Pynchon Michael Moorcock J G Ballard Richard Powers and Ian McEwan
