Constructing Identities Mike Michael,1996-01-28 This volume provides a distinctive overview and analysis of the place of social constructionism in social psychology The author s arguments revolve around two key questions How can social constructionism account for changes in human identities In what ways might social constructionism accommodate a role for nonhumans whether technological or natural in the constitution of identity Michael locates these questions between recent innovations in social psychology and the highly influential contributions of actor network theory which has come to dominate the sociology of scientific knowledge Constructing Identities Mike Michael,1996 By locating two relevant questions this book is able to sustain a clear discussion of how issues around agency hybridity marginality and the other can contribute to a better understanding of human identity devoting a chapter to each The first approach draws upon the work of Mary Douglas to articulate the cultural symbolic perspective on risk The second approach is that of the risk society perspective based on the writings of Ulrich Beck and Anthony Giddens The third approach covered is that of the governmentality perspective which builds on Michel Foucault's work Three other chapters examine in detail the relationship between concepts of risk and concepts of selfhood and the body the notion of Otherness and how this influences the ways in which people respond to and think about risk and the pleasures of voluntary risk taking including discussion of edgework An entirely new chapter has been added to this edition focusing on the risks posed by misinformation and denial in the context of climate change and the COVID 19 pandemic This chapter discusses the politics of post truth cultures and the powerful networks of actor and organizations that together work to challenge science and manufacture dissent against attempts to tackle these crises This new edition of Risk is an essential introduction to the topic of risk for students and academics in the social sciences and humanities
