Mothering in the Age of Neoliberalism Giles Melinda Vandenberg, 2014-03-01 Neoliberal policies and austerity measures have unequivocally altered the landscape of women's lives globally. The most detrimental effect has been on mothers as they are faced with increasing responsibility and decreasing resources. Despite mothers being the primary producers, consumers, and reproducers of the neoliberal world, their centrality has been largely silenced within economic discourse. Thus Mothering in the Age of Neoliberalism calls for a new economic framework to counter the individualized neoliberal model, one in which the needs of mothers and children are prioritized. This volume provides a crucial starting point. By identifying the sources of neoliberal failure toward mothers, we can begin to collectively formulate an alternative paradigm in which mothers' voices are no longer rendered invisible but rather predominate in the global landscape.

The Imprint of Another Life Margaret Homans, 2013-07-18 The Imprint of Another Life: Adoption Narratives and Human Possibility addresses a series of questions about common beliefs about adoption. Underlying these beliefs is the assumption that human qualities are innate and intrinsic, an assumption often held by adoptees and their families, sometimes at great emotional cost. This book explores representations of adoption: transracial, transnational, and domestic, same-race adoption that reimagine human possibility by questioning this assumption and conceiving of alternatives. Literary scholar Margaret Homans examines fiction's special relationship to themes of adoption as if a form of family making fabricated or fictional instead of biological or real. Adoption has tended to generate stories rather than uncover bedrock truths. Adoptive families are made, not born. In the words of novelist Jeanette Winterson, adopted children are self-invented because we have to be. In attempting to recover their lost histories and identities, adoptees create new stories about themselves. While some believe that adoptees cannot be whole unless they reconnect with their origins, others believe that privileging biology reaffirms hierarchies such as those of race that harm societies and individuals. Adoption is lived and represented through an irresolvable tension between belief in the innate nature of human traits and belief in their constructedness, contingency, and changeability. The book shows some of the ways in which literary creation and a concept of adoption as a form of creativity manages this tension. The texts examined include fiction, e.g., classic novels such as Silas Marner, What Maisie Knew, and Beloved; memoirs by adoptees, adoptive parents, and birthmothers; drama; documentary films; advice manuals; social science writing; and published interviews with adoptees, parents, and birth parents. Along the way, the book tracks the quests of adoptees who, whether or not they meet their original families, must construct their own stories rather than finding them. Follows transnational adoptees as they return, hopes held high to Korea and China, looks over the shoulders of a generation of girls adopted from China as they watch Disney's iconic Mulan with its alluring story of destiny written on the skin, and listens to birthmothers as they struggle to tell painful secrets held for decades. This book engages in debates within adoption studies, women's and gender studies, transnational studies, and ethnic studies; it will appeal to literary scholars and critics, including specialists in memoir or narrative theory, and to general readers interested in adoption and in race.
