Re-Coupling Mary Jo Rapini, Mohit Khera, 2015-04-30. A book about intimacy and sex in marriage is hardly unique. But a no-nonsense text written by a board-certified urologist and a licensed psychotherapist who work in tandem to treat and educate their patients is something new and special. Together, Rapini and Khera have provided medical treatment and emotional guidance to couples searching for greater intimacy, better sex, and happier marriages. They observe on a daily basis that if one partner has psychological or medical issues, both partners are affected, so they work with couples as they treat the problems of individuals. In this book, they invite couples to consider together issues ranging from communication and intimacy to erectile dysfunction and loss of sexual desire.

Coupling... What Makes Permanence? (Psychology Revivals) Barbara Jo Brothers, 2014-10-10. Originally published in 1991, the theme for this title is the exploration of the components of lasting long-term relationships. It begins with the first part of an interview between Sheldon Starr and Virginia Satir made in 1985 and is followed by a comment on that interview by the Editor. Other chapters discuss the subject of falling in love and the notion of being in love as distinguished from a love relationship. The authors, including some who have been married for many years, themselves look at the many aspects that make long-term relationships successful. The chapters range in essence from "What is love?" to "How is love maintained?" This title aims to share the information the authors have gained about what makes coupling work with society as a whole.
