The Great Run Braam Malherbe, 2010-12-21 Everyone said it couldn't be done even internationally renowned sports scientists such as Dr Tim Noakes. Certainly no one had done it before though many had tried to run the Great Wall of China end to end non stop. The journey would start in the Gobi Desert cross the jagged Taihang Shan range and end at the Bo Sea. It would involve blood boiling heat and mummifying sandstorms soul numbing mountain nights incidents with bandits and draconian officials pig s hean soup and witnessing large scale environmental devastation. But one had counted on the tenacity of South African nature lover Braam Malherbe. In running the main intact section of the Great Wall 4 500 kilometres end to end Braam and his running partner David Grier set a world first. But Braam would have to call on reserves far deeper physically and emotionally than even he realised he had. China was never going to let him off lightly then again it would not leave a worthy traveller unmoved or unchanged. What began as a running away from long buried childhood trauma family suffering and loss as well as hurt felt for the state of the planet would eventually become a journey towards inner peace and understanding. The book concludes with the writer running into a new vision of healing the planet step by small step one person at a time.

Saving Face Heather Laine Talley, 2014-08-15 Winner Body and Embodiment Award presented by the American Sociological Association

Imagine yourself without a face the task seems impossible The face is a core feature of our physical identity Our face is how others identify us and how we think of our self Yet human faces are also functionally essential as mechanisms for communication and as a means of eating breathing and seeing For these reasons facial disfigurement can endanger our fundamental notions of self and identity or even be life threatening at worse Precisely because it is so difficult to conceal our faces the disfigured face compromises appearance status and perhaps our very way of being in the world In Saving Face sociologist Heather Laine Talley examines the cultural meaning and social significance of interventions aimed at repairing faces defined as disfigured Using ethnography participant observation content analysis interviews and autoethnography Talley explores four sites in which a range of faces are repaired face transplantation facial feminization surgery the reality show Extreme Makeover and the international charitable organization Operation Smile Throughout she considers how efforts focused on repair sometimes intensify the stigma associated with disfigurement Drawing upon experiences volunteering at a camp for children with severe burns Talley also considers alternative interventions and everyday practices that both challenge stigma and help those seen as disfigured negotiate outsider status Talley delves into the promise and limits of facial surgery continually examining how we might understand appearance as a facet of privilege and a dimension of inequality Ultimately she argues that facial work is not simply a conglomeration of reconstructive techniques aimed at the human face but rather that appearance interventions are increasingly treated as lifesaving work Especially at a time when aesthetic technologies carrying greater risk are emerging and when discrimination based on appearance is rampant this important book challenges us to think critically about how we see the human face
