Changing Places Flexibility Lifelong Learning And A Learning Society:

Changing Places? Richard Edwards, 2002-09-10 Flexibility has become a central concept in much policy and academic debate. Individuals, organizations and societies are all required to become more flexible so that they can participate in the ongoing processes of change involved in lifelong learning. This book explores how the notion of a learning society has developed over recent years, the changes that have given rise to the requirement for flexibility and the changed discourses and practices that have emerged in the education and training of adults. With the growth in interest in adults as learners primarily to support economic competitiveness, the closed field of adult education has now been displaced by a more open discourse of lifelong learning. This involves not only changing practices such as moving towards open and distance based learning but also changing workplace identities. Learning settings are therefore changing places in a number of senses: they are places in which people change, they are subject to change and they are changing to include the home and workplace as well as more formal settings. This book takes an unusually critical standpoint, it challenges contemporary trends, explores the uncertainties and ambivalences of the processes of change and is suggestive of different forms of engagement with them. It will prove an important text for policy makers, workplace trainers and those working in the field of adult further and higher education. Richard Edwards is currently a Senior Lecturer in post compulsory education at the Open University.

Differing Visions of a Learning Society Vol 1 Frank Coffield, 2000-07-26 This volume provides an examination of what is meant by the learning society and how it can contribute to the development of knowledge and skills for employment and other areas of adult life.

The Oxford Handbook of Lifelong Learning Manuel London, 2011-03-11 One of the Best Books of 2011 from the Center for Optimal Adult Development. Amid fluctuations in today's job markets and economies, the importance of learning across the lifespan has become a point of emphasis for governments and employers throughout the world. The Oxford Handbook of Lifelong Learning is a comprehensive and interdisciplinary examination of the theory and practice of lifelong learning, encompassing perspectives from human resources, development, adult learning, psychology, career and vocational learning, management and executive development, cultural anthropology, the humanities and gerontology. Individual chapters address the most relevant topics on the subject, including continuous learning as it relates to technological, economic and organizational changes, developmental theories and research models of lifelong learning and the neurological bases for learning across the lifespan, examples of learning programs, tools and technologies with a focus on corporate programs and business education, international perspectives on lifelong learning and learning across cultures, assessment of learning needs and outcomes. This comprehensive and forward thinking handbook is an important resource both personal and professional for students, scholars and for practitioners in the fields of training and development, human resource management, continuing education, instructional technology, professional development and organizational psychology.

International Handbook of Lifelong Learning David N. Aspin, Judith Chapman, Michael Hatton, Yukiko Sawano, 2012-12-06 Recent changes in the world

effected by the transformations of information technology globalisation and the move towards a knowledge economy over the last thirty years have been as radical and fundamental as the changes resulting from the invention of the wheel and the printing press We are now living in a new age in which the demands are so complex so multifarious and so rapidly changing that the only way in which we shall be able to survive them is by committing to a process of individual communal and global learning throughout the lifespan of all of us A number of international bodies and agencies have taken cognisance of these transformations and the demands they impose upon societies and communities of the twenty first century and have developed and articulated policies intended to enable all citizens of the world in the twenty first century to face these challenges It is now a declared policy of many governments and international agencies that the only vehicle for such preparation is education education education and that preparing for the knowledge economy and the learning society of the future has to be a lifelong undertaking an investment in the future that is not restricted merely to the domain of economic advancement but also to those of social inclusion and personal growth Realising this policy makers across the international arena are grappling with the need to move from systems that emphasise education and training to the radically more unworked construct of lifelong learning In this volume the editors and authors analyse criticise and rework the ideas principles and theories underpinning policies and programs of lifelong learning re interpreting them in the light of examples of best practice found in a range of educating institutions around the world We believe that students of educational change and community development will find it useful and helpful to have available in this voluminous of the most up to date thinking on the chief concepts theories and values of increasing policy interest in lifelong learning together with a review of some significant examples of the different forms focuses and nexuses of thought and practice on this topic All this enables us to offer some policy recommendations and practical suggestions as to ways forward in the endeavour to make lifelong learning a reality for all
