Leadership Challenges in High Schools W. Norton Grubb, 2015-12-03. Principals are responsible for an increasing range of duties in an era of school reform, standardized testing, and more. These responsibilities are even greater in high schools, which are many times larger and more complex than elementary and middle schools. Yet little has been written on the special challenges of high schools and their leadership. This book fills the gap by exploring the challenges specific to high schools, including their size and complexity, the special difficulties in improving instruction, the crucial role of high schools for students' futures, adolescent behavioral issues, and many more. Grubb shows how principals and other leaders can address the complexities of multiple pathways or efforts to create theme-based trajectories through high school, one of the most promising high school reforms. Looking to the future, he offers alternative ways of preparing professionals for high schools and the responsibilities of districts for improving high schools and their leadership.

It is distinguished by its embeddedness in wider social science ideas and debates, enabling the challenges that schools and teachers face to be set in context and by its sharp assessment of the impact of decades of the erosion of trust and meaning on educational work.

Jenny Ozga, Professor of Educational Research, Centre for Educational Sociology, University of Edinburgh. He examines how official concepts of leadership are driven by demands which are not always to the educational, political, or social benefit of practitioners.
