Challenging Cancer:

Challenging Cancer Maurice Slevin, Maurice L. Slevin, Nira Kfir, 2002 Patients describe in their own words their strategies for coping with their condition and show that it is possible to turn a crisis into an opportunity The book is written for both patients and their family and friends

Indicted! James Henderson, 2009-02 In what promises to be the trial of the century attorney turned author James Henderson indicts the medical industrial cartel now dominating modern drug based medicine for trading the health of millions of Americans for dollars In the brilliant and intriguing setting of a jury trial the author enrolls We the People of America into a vast national jury to pass judgment on modern pharmaceutical medicine for cunningly treating chronic degenerative diseases like heart disease cancer and diabetes Americas leading killers by merely seeking to manage the symptoms of these diseases not even attempting to cure them Drug based medicine has become big business It thrives on sickness It dares not cure the patient or the money pipe line dries up The price tag Overt two trillion dollars annually and climbing And America is getting sicker by the day Author James Henderson offers the proven testimonies of eminent nutritional physicians and medical geniuses who have turned their backs on this criminal monopoly These brave souls have risked their careers to blow the whistle on the drugging of America In this court of public opinion if we the jury cannot discern the truth what hope is there for justice Or for medical freedom in America Will We the People make a decision before its too late Read Indicted and decide for yourself

Lung Adenocarcinoma: From Genomics to Immunotherapy Yiming Meng, Elisa Frullanti, 2024-04-19 Lung cancer is the second most common type of cancer and is the leading cause of cancer death globally In 2018 almost 2.1 million new cases were diagnosed accounting for 12% of the cancer burden worldwide The malignant stage of lung tumor is known as lung adenocarcinoma which is most common and is diagnosed in both smokers and non smokers There are two main types of lung cancer non small cell lung cancer NSCLC and small cell lung cancer SCLC Genomic studies have indicated that more than 80% of lung malignancies are classified as NSCLC of which adenocarcinoma is a predominant subtype Although significant progress has been made in treating tumor with targetable driver mutations like EGFR mutations most tumor do not have such mutations and the prognosis remains poor for metastasis stage patients Platinum doublet chemotherapy has been the mainstay first line treatment of patients who are diagnosed with metastatic lung adenocarcinoma without a targetable mutation In recent years immunotherapy has emerged as a treatment option that has shown strong response in a subset of patients The immune agents block crucial checkpoints and regulate the immune response but the tumor cells evade the patient's immune systems By blocking these receptor ligand interactions a particular subset of T cells is activated to recognize and respond to tumor cells While such responses to immunotherapy are promising they have only been effective in 20% of patients

Challenges in VHEE Radiotherapy Luigi Palumbo, Angeles Faus Golfe, Paola Ballesteros Zebadua, Jiaru Shi, 2025-12-19 VHEE Very High Energy Electron radiotherapy is an emerging technique in the field of radiation therapy aimed at delivering radiation to cancerous tissues with high energy electrons VHEE radiotherapy holds relevant potential benefits that have attracted intense scientific and technological interest and at present a consolidated R D topic around the world However its implementation in clinical applications poses challenges in several interdisciplinary fields One of the main issues concerns Beam Production and Dose Delivery VHEE requires linear accelerators capable of producing electrons with energies in the range of 50 250 MeV which are much higher than what traditional electron beam therapies use The high intensity of the electron beam must allow the radiation treatment to reach Ultra High Dose Rates UHDR to also explore the FLASH regime In addition the device should be compact and reliable suitable for a hospital environment VHEE beams have the potential to penetrate deep seated tumors more effectively than traditional low energy electron beams However accurately predicting the range of these high energy electrons in different tissue types and accounting for tissue heterogeneities is a challenge Indeed the depth dose distribution of VHEE beams is different from that of conventional low energy electron beams Factors like beam scattering and range can influence the dose deposition profile which requires careful consideration during treatment planning Therefore accurate calculation and planning of the radiation dose delivered to the tumor while sparing surrounding healthy tissues is crucial VHEE dosimetry and treatment planning systems need to be carefully developed and validated to ensure precise dose delivery Verifying the accuracy of VHEE treatments is essential Techniques such as in vivo dosimetry and imaging e g cone beam CT or portal imaging must be developed to ensure that the intended dose is accurately delivered to the tumor
