Changing General Education New Directions For Higher Education:

Changing General Education Curriculum James L. Ratcliff, D. Kent Johnson, Jerry G. Gaff, 2004-04-07 This issue is about changing the general education curriculum in big ways through significant reforms and more frequently incremental ways to accomplish purposes better connect with students better and provide a more engaging and intellectually and emotionally compelling common collegiate experience The chapter authors present the results of a recent national survey on changes in general education four case studies of institutions that have undertaken change how they did it what the constraints were and most important what the results were and discussions on achieving curricular coherence and the nature of change and how to bring it about This is the 125th issue of the quarterly journal New Directions for Higher Education Strategic Curriculum Change in Universities Paul Blackmore, Camille B. Kandiko, 2012-06-25 The curriculum is a live issue in universities across the world Many stakeholders governments employers professional and disciplinary groups and parents express strong and often conflicting views about what higher education should achieve for its students Many universities are reviewing their curricula at an institutional level aware that they are in a competitive climate in which league tables encourage students to see themselves as consumers and the university as a product or even a brand The move has prompted renewed concern for some central educational questions about both what is learnt and how Strategic Curriculum Change explores the ways in which major universities across the world are reviewing their approaches to teaching and learning It unites institution level strategy with the underlying educational issues The book is grounded in a major study of curriculum change in over twenty internationally focused research intensive universities in the UK US Australia The Netherlands South Africa and Hong Kong Chapters include Achieving curriculum coherence Curriculum design and delivery as social practice Assessment in curriculum change The whole of institution curriculum renewal undertaken by the University of Melbourne 2005 2011 The physical and virtual environment for learning People and change Academic work and leadership This book presents a theorised and contextualised approach to the study of the curriculum and carries on much needed research on the curriculum in higher education It is an essential for the collection of all academics at university level and those involved in policy making quality assurance and enhancement New Directions for Higher Education, 1977 Building Sustainable Futures for Adult Learners Jennifer K. Holtz, Stephen B. Springer, Carrie J. Boden-McGill, 2014-10-20 Building Sustainable Futures for Adult Learners is a refereed collection of papers from the Adult Higher Educational Alliance and American Association of Adult and Continuing Education Conferences The third in a series it thematically presents topics in adult education filling a unique niche and extending AHEA's reach Changing General Education Curriculum James L. Ratcliff, D. Kent Johnson, Jerry G. Gaff, 2004-04-07 This issue is about changing the general education curriculum in big ways through significant reforms and more frequently incremental ways to accomplish purposes better connect with students better and provide a more engaging and intellectually and emotionally compelling common collegiate experience The chapter authors present the results of a recent national survey on changes in general education four case studies of institutions that have undertaken change how they did it what the constraints were and most important what the results were and discussions on achieving curricular coherence and the nature of change and how to bring it about This is the 125th issue of the quarterly journal New Directions for Higher Education How Accreditation Influences Assessment James L. Ratcliff, Edward S. Lubinescu, Maureen A. Gaffney, 2001-04-26 With the shift in accreditation from standards to student learning outcomes and institutional and programmatic requirements to demonstrate student outcomes increasing this volume offers timely perspectives and research on the latest developments in accreditation and assessment The authors accrediting agency officials campus leaders involved with accreditation and assessment and higher education researchers discuss six salient new directions in accreditation and assessment process that together offer effective ways to enhance student faculty and institutional learning Examples of working accreditation programs include new methods of distance education program assessment an institutional accreditation self study at the University of Vermont and the Urban Universities Portfolio Project a national study involving six urban universities who are using electronic portfolios to provide public access on student learning outcomes The authors also present an initial review of accreditation and assessment backgrounds changing standards and underlying issues as well as a survey of more than twenty written accreditation policies making this volume a valuable resource for anyone planning or conducting an institutional self study as a vehicle for change and renewal This is the 113th issue of the quarterly journal New Directions for Higher Education General Education and the Development of Global Citizenship in Hong Kong, Taiwan and Mainland China Jun Xing, 2013 General Education has taken center stage in the greater China area Hong Kong Taiwan and mainland China because of a number of important developments First globalization has created both opportunities and challenges for college students When they graduate and enter the real world they must have the cultural sensitivities and social skills in addition to their professional training to compete in a knowledge based global economy Equally significant for institutions of higher education pressing global problems challenge traditional disciplines and demand new forms of learning that reshapes the boundaries of knowledge In response to those rapidly changing dynamics general education has taken an increasingly important role in undergraduate education As the first English publication on the subject this anthology brings together a distinguished group of General Education scholars and teachers from Hong Kong Taiwan and mainland China General Education Jerry G. Gaff, 1999 The intent of this discussion paper is to provide a survey of emerging trends in general education reform at institutions of higher education Ten themes are identified 1 rethinking the major 2 concern with student learning beyond course content 3 an increased emphasis on diversity 4 the importance of technology 5 efficiency and effectiveness 6 the need for more emphasis on implementation strategies in improving general education 7 new administrative models 8 the necessity of program assessment 9 combining of change initiatives and 10 convergence of two movements one to improve general education and

Planning for Assessment Lion F. Gardiner, 1989 Universal Design in Higher Education Sheryl Burgstahler, Rebecca Cory, 2008 Universal Design in Higher Education is a comprehensive guide for researchers and practitioners on creating fully accessible college and university programs As greater numbers of students with disabilities attend postsecondary educational institutions administrators have expressed increased interest in making their programs accessible to all students This book provides both theoretical and practical guidance for schools as they work to turn this admirable goal into a reality thereby making a crucial contribution to the growing body of literature on special education and universal design It looks at the design of physical and technological environments at institutions of higher education at issues pertaining to curriculum and instruction and at the full array of student services It concludes with a thorough consideration of how to institutionalize universal design at higher education institutions Inclusion has come to higher education More than explaining what the law requires Burgstahler and Cory have given us a primer on how universal design in education can improve university and college life for everyone Douglas Biklen Dean of the School of Education Syracuse University Burgstahler and Cory have put together a groundbreaking comprehensive text that brings together all the best information about the theory and practice of Universal Design UD and its potential in higher education As a paradigm of inclusion UD offers a model for addressing issues of equality accessibility and social and intellectual integration Demonstrating the breadth and depth of this powerful model in higher education this text covers the application of UD in campus design student services faculty development instructional technology academic administration and classroom instruction from first year courses to advanced study Brenda Jo Brueggemann Professor of English Disability Studies The Ohio State University It is wonderful to have one book that explains and gives illustrations of Universal Design in one fell swoop I've read and re-read descriptions of what UDL is but am always left wondering how to put it into action This book answers that question Judy Elimelech Coordinator of Disability Services Missouri Southern State University Sheryl E Burgstahler is the director of DO IT Disabilities Opportunities Internetworking and Technology which promotes the success of students with disabilities in colleges and universities and Accessible Technology Services and Outreach at the University of Washington Rebecca C Cory is a research consultant with DO IT and has served as coordinator of disability services for two colleges She is the coeditor of Building Pedagogical Curb Cuts Incorporating Disability in the University Classroom and Curriculum

Accreditation: Assuring and Enhancing Quality Patricia M. O'Brien, 2009-04-20 This volume offers insight into U S accreditation its history values advantages benefits and challenges and in so doing respond to recent critiques They remind us that it is imperative for accrediting commissions and institutions to take steps to address the legitimate concerns raised about the ability of accreditation to function effectively and efficiently and to meet the needs not only of institutions but of prospective students and their families and they outline suggestions for how this might be done Chapters discuss Accreditation in the United States How Did We Get to Where We Are Accreditation's Benefits for Individuals and Institutions A College President's Defense of Accreditation The Impact of the Changing Climate for Accreditation on the Individual College or University Five Trends and Their Implications An Accreditation Dilemma The Tension Between Program Accountability and Program Improvement in the Programmatic Accreditation Accreditation Systems in Japan and the United States A Comparative Perspective on Governmental Involvement Accreditation in the United States Musings on the Future of Accreditation Accreditation has long been regarded as an effective mechanism through which to assure and improve the quality of higher education and it has long been accepted as a fact of life for colleges and universities Although campus chief executive officers might occasionally bemoan the cost or the effort associated with accreditation reviews they have also been quick to realize the benefits of the process With the convening of the Commission on the Future of Higher Education commonly referred to as the Spellings Commission in 2005 however accreditation has come under attack Critics of accreditation have argued that accreditation no longer serves institutions or the general public well They have castigated accrediting commissions for emphasizing inputs over outcomes as measures of quality for being insufficiently transparent about their processes and for providing inadequate information to students and their families and to members of the general public This volume is an invaluable resource for institutions facing the accreditation process It is the 145th volume of the Jossey Bass quarterly report series New Directions for Higher Education Addressed to presidents vice presidents deans and other higher education decision makers on all kinds of campuses New Directions for Higher Education provides timely information and authoritative advice about major issues and administrative problems confronting every institution

Planning Effectively for Educational Quality William H. Bergquist, Jack L. Armstrong, 1986 Handbook of the Undergraduate Curriculum Jerry G. Gaff, James L. Ratcliff, 1997 This volume offers a compendium of the best ideas analyses and practices relating to the undergraduate curriculum as described by leading figures in the field It contains both conceptual and practical information on effective practices research management and assessment In thirty four original chapters top practitioners and scholars detail a range of philosophies frameworks program designs instructional strategies and assessment methods being used to strengthen and transform the curriculum They examine both the current state of knowledge and teaching in the disciplines and the forces that will reshape the curriculum in the coming years The Handbook of Undergraduate Curriculum will prove valuable both to practitioners as an operating manual or desk reference and to faculty as a primary text for graduate courses on the curriculum In addition the book will be a useful tool for those serving on a general education curriculum committee or conducting a departmental review of a major program as well as having numerous other practical applications for anyone with responsibility for or interest in the curriculum
