Cultivating Biodiversity:

Cultivating Biodiversity to Transform Agriculture Étienne Hainzelin, 2013-12-04 How can cultivated plant biodiversity contribute to the transformation and the ecologization of agriculture in Southern countries Based on extensive field work in the Southern countries a great deal of scientific progress is presented in all areas affecting agriculture agronomy plant breeding and crop protection cultivation systems etc in order to intensify the ecological processes in cultivated plots and at the scale of rural landscapes

Cultivating Biodiversity H. C. Cultivating Diversity Lori Ann Thrupp, 1998 Biodiversity is a fundamental basis for agricultural production and food security as well as a valuable ingredient of environmental conservations This report reveals the urgent need for action to incorporate biodiversity planning into agricultural development and its highlights effective practices and policies

Linking Biodiversity Conservation and Poverty Alleviation ,2010 In 2002 the Conference of Parties set a target to achieve by 2010 a significant reduction of the current rate of biodiversity loss at the global regional and national level as a contribution to poverty alleviation and the benefit of all life on Earth We have failed to meet the 2010 target and the latest MDG report notes the grave consequences of this for poor people The irreparable loss of biodiversity will also hamper efforts to meet other MDGs especially those related to poverty hunger and health by increasing the vulnerability of the poor and reducing their options for development The CBD has long emphasised the need for integrating DEPENDENCE OF THE POOR ON BIODIVERSITY This review focuses on the question which groups of the differentiated poor depend in which types of ways on different elements of biological diversity The methodology for the review included an examination of the peer reviewed literature as published in journals and books and an examination of websites and portals of major organisations forums working on biodiversity conservation and poverty alleviation It may be too simplistic to say that the majority of the world s biodiversity is in the South which is also where the poorer countries of the world are Schei 2007 Matiku 2008 and it is certainly not the case that significant biodiversity only occurs in areas of poverty

PGR ,2004 Cultivating a Healthy Enterprise John Belt, Ard Lengkeek, Jeroen van der Zant, 2003 Supply chain analysis provides a powerful tool in designing actions that enhance sustainable economic development In their commitment to cultivate healthy enterprise KIT IAMR and CSD developed an approach where stakeholders interact to construct a sustainable and equitable chain A case study was conducted on medicinal plants in Uttaranchal India Medicinal plants are a fascinating global enterprise they play a unique role in health care culture biodiversity and rural economies Worldwide the demand for medicinal plants is growing

The mountains of Uttarakhand have the potential to become a major supplier. The central question is how this opportunity can be transformed into reality. This bulletin provides some answers and insights in the lessons learned. It summarises the findings of field research carried out in the Chamoli area. Recommendations are made regarding policy reforms, stakeholder dialogue, the promotion of cultivation and removal of market uncertainties. The authors believe that a sustainable medicinal plant chain can be developed, creating livelihood opportunities for people in remote and marginal areas. Similar initiatives covering other regions and supply chains can flourish with the lessons learned from this inspiring case. Book jacket

Proceedings of the Norway/UNEP Expert Conference on Biodiversity, 24-28 May 1993 Odd Terje Sandlund, Peter Johan Schei, 1993

Trends in Biodiversity Research A. R. Burk, 2005 Biological diversity or biodiversity refers to the variety of all life on earth and the complex relationships among living things and between living things and their environment. Biodiversity includes genetic variety, species diversity and variability in communities, ecosystems and landscapes. Biodiversity sustains the environments in which we live and on which our lives and those of every other living creature on Earth depend. Thanks to biodiversity we are able to obtain such necessary goods as food, clothing, medicine and fuel. Equally important are the ecosystem services that biodiversity provides such as clean air and drinkable water. Conservation scientists have identified a number of universal threats to biodiversity: habitat loss and degradation, invasive species, pollution, overpopulation, overexploitation and consumption, and global climate change. This new book examines critical issues in this field from researchers around the globe.

Agrodiversity H. C. Brookfield, Helen Parsons, Muriel Brookfield, 2003 While most academic literature emphasizes the accelerated loss of biodiversity, this book describes how large numbers of smallholder farmers are conserving biodiversity in their farmland and surrounds.

Agricultural Biodiversity in Smallholder Farms of East Africa Fidelis Kaihura, Michael Stocking, 2003 The rich biodiversity of plants found in smallholder farms in Africa helps support communities by producing a range of resources from medicines to construction materials. These farms are often the guardians as well as the beneficiaries of a greater diversity of biological species than can be found in protected areas. This publication discusses how the smallholder farmers of East Africa in Kenya, Tanzania and Uganda are contributing to the global agenda for the conservation, sustainable use and equitable sharing of the benefits of biodiversity.
