Family, Self, and Human Development Across Cultures Cigdem Kagitcibasi, 2017-07-20. This influential volume was a work of masterful scholarship and field defining thought that challenged the existing assumptions in mainstream western psychology about the nature of individuals. During the past two decades since its publication, cultural and cross cultural research and theory on the self, family and human development have expanded greatly, developing fruitfully from the basic issues and paradigms. Kagitcibasi explored this. This Classic Edition provides a critical assessment, consideration and reflection of recent scholarship in this field. It brings this essential work up to date and appraises it in the light of current prevailing perspectives.

Children's Engagement in the World Artin Göncü, 1999-05-13. This volume first published in 1999 examines children's development and education within a social and cultural context.

Acquiring Culture (Psychology Revivals) Gustav Jahoda, Ioan Lewis, 2015-03-27. Until the 70s and 80s, anthropologists studying different cultures had mainly confined themselves to the behaviour and idea systems of adults. Psychologists, on the other hand, working mainly in Europe and America, had studied child development in their own settings and simply assumed the universality of their findings. Thus, both disciplines had largely ignored a crucial problem area: the way in which children from birth onwards learn to become competent members of their culture. This process, which has been called the quintessential human adaptation, constitutes the theme of this volume, originally published in 1988. It derives from a workshop held at the London School of Economics which brought together fieldworkers who in their studies had paid more than usual attention to children in their cultures. Their experience and foci of interest were varied, but this very diversity serves to illuminate different facets of the acquisition of culture by children, ranging in age from pre-verbal infants to adolescents. Evolutionarily primed for culture learning, children are responsive to a rich web of influences, from subtle and indirect, as in their music and dance, to direct teaching in the family, guided by culture specific ideas about child psychology. Some of the salient things they learn relate to gender, status and power, critical for the functioning of all societies. The introductory essay provides the necessary historical background of the development of child study in both anthropology and psychology and outlines how future research in the ethnography of childhood should proceed. The book concludes with an annotated bibliography providing a guide to the literature from 1970 onwards.

Maternité et parcours de vie Jean-Marie Le Goff, 2005. L'étude des comportements familiaux prend son sens lorsque la maternité est située dans un projet de vie, la décision individuelle dans une société et que les souhaits sont confrontés aux réalités du quotidien. En analysant les données de l'enquête nationale sur la famille, cet ouvrage fait le point sur les tendances de la fécondité en Suisse à la fin du second millénaire en s'interrogeant sur la place de l'enfant dans les parcours de vie féminins. Après avoir situé l'étude en référence aux données et théories sur la fécondité occidentale et suisse, les auteurs abordent trois grandes questions : Comment évolue le calendrier des maternités et quels sont les facteurs associés au souhait d'enfant ? Que nous apprennent les habitudes contraceptives et les interruptions de grossesse sur la maîtrise du projet fécond ? Comment s'articulent vie familiale et vie professionnelle ? L'ouvrage se termine par une discussion sur les différents types de comportements familiaux en termes de temporalité et d'ambivalence du projet d'enfant.

Commonwealth Universities Yearbook, 2002      Current Index to Journals in Education, 1997-10      Child Development Within Culturally Structured Environments, Volume 3 Jaan Valsiner, 1995. Using a comparative cultural perspective, this collection of essays examines the co-constructivist nature of human development in culturally organized environments. The contributions also cover a large age span, infancy to adulthood. Chapters in part 1 cover two different directions in the study of early adult-infant interaction from a comparative cultural perspective. Chapters in part 2 are devoted to child socialization in the cultural-ecological contexts of Southern Italy and India. Chapters in part 3 examine the co-construction of self in adolescence. Chapters in part 4 provide a cross-cultural analysis of the meaning of intelligence or intellectual competence. Following an introduction to the comparative cultural perspective, Valsiner's chapter titles are: 1. The Study of Early Interaction in a Contextual Perspective; Culture, Communication, and Eye Contact; Scholmerich and others; 2. Transformation and Construction in Social Interaction: A New Perspective on Analysis of the Mother-Infant Dyad; Lyra and Rossetti Ferreira; 3. Amoral Familism and Child Development; Edward Banfield and the Understanding of Child Socialization in Southern Italy; Benigni and Valsiner; 4. Childrearing Practices Relevant for the Growth of Dependency and Competence in Children; Sinha; 5. Transformation of Women's Social Roles in India; Verma; 6. A Co-Constructivist Perspective of Life Course Changes among Havik Brahmins in a South India Village; Ullrich; 7. Culture and Self-Concept among Adolescents with Bicultural Parentage: A Social Constructionist Approach; Minoura; 8. Persons' Conception of Human Nature: A Cross-Cultural Comparison; Oerter; 9. The Meaning of Intellectual Competence: Views from a Favela; Oliveira and; 10. Cultural and Environmental Influences in the Acquisition of Concepts of Intellectual Competence; Keats. An epilogue: Comparative Cultural Co-Constructionism and its Discontents. Valsiner examines some of the difficulties inherent in the comparative cultural co-constructionist perspective. Each section begins with an editorial introduction and each chapter includes references. HTH
