Cultural Perspectives On Reproductive Health:

Cultural Perspectives on Reproductive Health Carla Makhoul Obermeyer, 2001-08-23 This volume brings together studies carried out in a variety of contexts to explore the relevance of the notion of reproductive health and the role of culture in shaping its diverse manifestations The perspective that guides the collection is informed by anthropological and sociological research on the body pluralism and medicalization and by recent debates regarding women's health and the need to reconcile global agendas and local conditions The fourteen chapters provide views of how reproductive health is viewed by women and men in different parts of the world mainly at the level of local communities in India Egypt Mexico Kenya and South Africa but also in centres of power in China and Iran and in modern and post modern settings of the North and Far East The methodological approaches used by authors are varied but all share a concern with the perceptions decisions and rationalizations that surround health and reproduction A central theme is the correspondence between professional and lay models of reproductive health and some chapters explicitly seek to uncover the logic of practices that appear irrational from a biomedical point of view By analysing behaviour from the perspective of the actors themselves they show the relevance of local notions for understanding the factors that constitute risks for reproductive ill health including conditions of material deprivation constraints in seeking care and inappropriate use of therapies and technologies Cultural Perspectives on Reproductive Health illustrates complex processes of negotiation adaptation and manipulation in the formulation of ideas and policies related to reproductive health through analyses of such topics as the state's discourse on population religious constraints on abortion care professional and legal policies on reproductive technologies health professionals response to violence and the dilemmas that emerge from the new diagnostic and genetic techniques It also invites reflection on the societal construction of rights across cultures and on the place of cultural explanations in analyses of reproductive health Cultural Perspectives on Reproductive Health, 1997 Managing Reproductive Life Soraya Tremayne, 2001 In 1999 the Institute of Social and Cultural Anthropology at the University of Oxford held a workshop on the social dynamics of human reproduction This volume contains 12 papers from scholars in Britain and the U S that were originally presented at that workshop Topics include for example motherhood among young prostitutes in Thailand the meaning of children in Hong Kong and the reproductive health of refugees Annotation copyrighted by Book News Inc Portland OR

Women and Health Patricia Whelehan, 1988-07-30 This long awaited holistic and cross cultural survey demonstrates the effects of varying economic political social and cultural conditions on women's health throughout the world The authors address a wide range of topics from the sexual reproductive and gynecological to issues such as stress from and adaptation to increased urbanization changing work roles and family structures Offers a complex picture of women's experiences as seekers of health care in an increasingly multifaceted world in which traditional medical models and treatments have not vanished but have been suppressed by Western therapies and therapists American Journal of Physical

Marginalized Reproduction Lorraine Culley, Nicky Hudson, Floor van Rooij, 2012-05-16 Worldwide over 75 million people are involuntarily childless a devastating experience for many with significant consequences for the social and psychological well being of women in particular Despite greater levels of infertility and strong cultural meanings attached to having children little attention has been paid politically or academically to the needs of minority ethnic women and men This groundbreaking volume is the first to highlight the ways in which diverse ethnic cultural and religious identities impact upon understandings of technological solutions for infertility and associated treatment experiences within Western societies It offers a corrective to the dominance of the narratives of hegemonic groups in infertility research The collection begins with a discussion of fertility prevalence and access to treatment for minorities in the West and considers some of the key methodological challenges for social research on ethnicity and infertility Drawing on primary research from the US the UK Eire Germany the Netherlands and Australia the book then turns the spotlight onto the ways in which minority status and cultural and religious mores might impact on the experience of infertility and assisted reproductive technologies It argues that more equitable access to culturally competent assisted conception services should be an essential component of a transformatory politics of infertility
