Cultivating Knowledge Andrew Flachs, 2019-11-05 A single seed is more than just the promise of a plant In rural south India seeds represent diverging paths toward a sustainable livelihood Development programs and global agribusiness promote genetically modified seeds and organic certification as a path toward more sustainable cotton production but these solutions mask a complex web of economic social political and ecological issues that may have consequences as dire as death In Cultivating Knowledge anthropologist Andrew Flachs shows how rural farmers come to plant genetically modified or certified organic cotton sometimes during moments of agrarian crisis Interweaving ethnographic detail discussions of ecological knowledge and deep history Flachs uncovers the unintended consequences of new technologies which offer great benefits to some but at others expense Flachs shows that farmers do not make simple cost benefit analyses when evaluating new technologies and options Their evaluation of development is a complex and shifting calculation of social meaning performance economics and personal aspiration Only by understanding this complicated nexus can we begin to understand sustainable agriculture By comparing the experiences of farmers engaged with these mutually exclusive visions for the future of agriculture Cultivating Knowledge investigates the human responses to global agrarian change It illuminates the local impact of global changes the slow persistent dangers of pesticides inequalities in rural life the aspirations of people who grow fibers sent around the world the place of ecological knowledge in modern agriculture and even the complex threat of suicide It all begins with a seed Cultivating Knowledge Walter de Boef, Kojo Amanor, Kate Wellard, Anthony Bebbington, 1993 Reflects new approaches and concepts in the field of conservation and the development of local crops Case studies from Africa Latin America and Asia address these issues from different angles examining the significance of local knowledge and documenting new approaches and methodologies Knowledge Management Suliman Al-Hawamdeh, 2003-10-31 This book serves as a reference for individuals interested in knowledge management KM and educational issues surrounding KM It looks at KM as an emerging profession and the need to educate a new generation of knowledge professionals to deal with managing knowledge on the one hand and managing knowledge workers on the other hand In particular it examines the skills and competencies of knowledge professionals and how educational programs can address these demands covering such issues as determining the optimal mix of subjects from the various disciplines that develop the requisite professional competencies The first book to cover KM education Adopts a multidisciplinary approach to KM education Based on the many years of experience of the author in KM education The Knowledge of Communities Nancy Meyer, Leni Oman, John S. Cultivating Knowledge Scott Tunison, 2016-07-27 Over the last decade or two there has been increasing consensus that academic research if used judiciously to guide practice improves both educational policy and pedagogy ultimately leading to better outcomes for students Yet despite this potential there remains a deep ravine between the body of knowledge built through research especially at the intersection between specific interventions and improved student achievement and the actions taken by policy makers administrators and classroom teachers in their regular practice There are myriad reasons for this research practice divide Among them is that it is difficult for district based people to access primary research Furthermore multiple waves of well intentioned research based but largely unsuccessful school reform efforts have resulted in skepticism among practitioners about research and at the same time damaged researchers credibility in the field This book is divided into three broad areas First it develops an engaging analysis of the root causes for the research practice gap in education Second it describes the framework developed and used in a public school district by the author to address the root causes and provides evidence of its efficacy to facilitate greater incorporation of research into school and district level practice Through a process the author calls Knowledge Cultivation the framework uses weekly research summaries for district leaders that are relevant to their real time issues along with suggestions about ways in which the research might be useful The final section of the book includes the actual research summaries used by the author over a five year period
