Social Structure Of Contemporary China Xueyi Lu, 2012-07-24 This book is the third study done by the Research Group on Social Structure Change in Contemporary China a group affiliated with the Institute of Sociology Chinese Academy of Social Sciences The group has focused on the process of development and change in contemporary Chinese social structure and come to the following conclusions Contemporary China is transitioning from a traditional agricultural and rural society to a modern industrialized and urban society from a highly centralized planned economy to a robust socialist market economic system The entire society is undertaking an unprecedented evolution During the three decades of reform and opening up China has made brilliant achievements never seen before in history Now China is in a critical period of reform and opening up with very complex far reaching and closely intertwined social problems which are also unprecedented After deep and detailed analysis the Research Group believes that these problems cannot be resolved only by economic methods In order to get to the roots of these social problems China must develop new social policies strengthen the social structure and carry out social system reform The core purpose of the book is to recommend theories and methods on social structure to society and readers and to investigate the development and change in China's social structure We believe that social structure theory a brand new point of view to analyze the current situation is capable of deciphering the social contradictions in China's development to some extent as opposed to mere economic theory which is inadequate to fully address the structural problems in China

Chinese Democracy and the Crisis of 1989 LOU NING, 1993-01-01 This study examines the process of democratization in China taking as a focal point the recent crisis of 1989 in Tiananmen Square but providing broader historical perspectives from both Chinese and American scholars The authors evaluate China's political heritage from theories of despotism in Chinese civilization to evidence for China's own democratic traditions They also analyze the more recent political and social crises of the 1980s leading to the massive urban demonstrations in the spring of 1989 with the conflicts that have divided the rural masses the state the army the cultural elite and the media in China and they discuss what these events tell us about China's cultural and political future
