NURSES RNS ARE highly respected professionals that form the backbone of healthcare Without a strong workforce of RNs the daily operations of healthcare would quickly grind to a halt Few careers offer such challenging yet rewarding work Every time RNs go to work they make a difference in people s lives or even save lives of newborns the elderly and everyone in between As key members of the healthcare team they perform a wide variety of tasks such as administer medications assist with surgery help people cope with long term illness and provide health education They also take care of patients in their homes as they recover from illness surgery or accidents RNs power the healthcare system ensuring that the many details involved in patient care flow smoothly This includes much more than direct patient care and RNs are not confined to the bedside Today s RNs handle case management conduct clinical research and teach in nursing programs They also influence legislation establish new healthcare delivery systems write and publish and participate on boards of directors They often supervise licensed practical nurses LPNs and nursing assistants A registered nursing career also offers many opportunities to specialize in one or more areas of patient care There are more than 100 specialties to choose from such as surgical pediatrics oncology emergency medicine geriatrics orthopedics or rehabilitation There are three routes to becoming a registered nurse The shortest and most popular is a two year nursing program known as an AND Although two years is not much time to invest in such a solid career it is not easy to accomplish This is a popular field and there is competition to get into nursing schools Once admitted students have to work hard to make it through the rigorous curriculum Will there be a job waiting for those who manage to get trained and licensed Registered nurses are everywhere and there are a growing number of working professionals There are three million registered nurses in the US which makes it the largest group of healthcare workers Yet that is not enough to fill the need There has been a nursing shortage for decades and the job growth rate for RNs continues to be much higher than for most other occupations The high demand means a newly graduated registered nurse will have the opportunity to work practically anywhere Employers are offering good pay as much as 70 000 a year even for those with less than a year of experience That does not even include sign on bonuses benefits and other perks With advanced training some nursing specialties pay over 200 000 a year A career in registered nursing offers a winning combination of job security ease of entry flexible work hours good pay and the opportunity to help others It is also challenging defined by hard work long hours and stressful situations For the right type of person however there is no more rewarding career than being a registered nurse

NURSING as a career and have been learning about this wonderful profession you may have come across the term Nurse Practitioner This is an advanced level of nursing that has been around for a relatively short period of time since 1965 It requires additional education training and certification beyond what you need in order to become a registered nurse RN In fact the usual education track toward becoming a nurse practitioner is to first become an RN Although there are many tasks that both NPs and RNs perform there are significant differences When you achieve your nurse practitioner certification you can do things that registered nurses are not trained to do notably prescribing and managing medications and other therapies and referring patients to other health professionals The training for nurse practitioners is similar in many ways to the training that doctors receive Both learn how to diagnose health problems determine the appropriate treatment and then administer that treatment Like doctors many nurse practitioners specialize working with a specific age group children adults or seniors or in a particular area of medicine such as oncology psychiatry or gastrointestinal Training and practice of NPs focus on prevention and wellness maintenance and they generally are considered to take a more holistic approach than do doctors do Nurse practitioners are sometimes confused with physician assistants PAs because they often perform similar tasks such as taking patient histories conducting diagnostic tests assisting in surgical procedures and offering counseling and health education to patients PAs receive national certification and may hold bachelor s or even master s degrees But as with registered nurses there is a critical difference PAs must work under the supervision of a physician while nurse practitioners can in many instances work independently of a doctor Many NPs operate their own practices without the presence of a supervising physician This is currently the case in more than a dozen states and more states are permitting this each year The demand for primary care health services is growing and there are simply not enough family doctors to fill the need nor are there expected to be enough for many years to come This is especially true in rural America as well as in the poorer sections of urban America This new Careers Ebook contains a wealth of unbiased information about an occupational field based on the latest national surveys Careers Ebooks cover attractive and unattractive sides opportunities education necessary personal qualifications required earnings descriptions of different job specialties first person accounts by those in the field and how to get started including practical advice on what to do now There are live links to schools and colleges associations periodicals and other sources of reliable information
