Caribbean people continue to migrate outside of the region in search of a better life. Assess the extent to which extra-regional migration is a loss for the Caribbean. (30 marks)

Migration is a historical legacy of the Caribbean. Historically the nature, direction and magnitude of migration in the Caribbean have always been influenced by trends in global and regional socio-economic development. Extra-regional migration is the movement of people from their home countries to other territories outside the Caribbean region. For the last couple of centuries, the Caribbean has shifted from being a net importer of labour to become a net exporter for a plethora of reasons. Some extent of extra-regional migration is a loss for the Caribbean and can be seen in the major gaps in our specialized jobs and labour market due to brain drain, decline in productivity and economic growth, disruption in family structures due to demographic changes, barrel-child syndrome, remittances and foreign mindedness.

Firstly, in search of higher wages and better employment, skilled professionals are on the move worldwide. Caribbean countries like Jamaica, Cuba and Trinidad and Tobago are strong exporters of qualified labourers such as nurses, teachers and farm workers. After the 1960s, the continent of North America (United States and Canada) and, to a lesser extent, Europe has become a preferred destination for migrants from the Caribbean. Although personal gain is attained, the Caribbean is left in ruins as a large percentage of the population of highly educated and skilled persons are leaving the islands contributing to high levels of brain drain. This feature known as brain drain has crippling developmental implications upon a society, as those persons who are indispensable to human and economic development leave for better wages. Jamaica has the second highest brain drain index and has some of the highest rates of migration of its tertiary-educated labour force. Caribbean islands such as Jamaica, have a massive shortage of teachers and institutions such as Campion College lost 19 teachers. As a result educational institutions are without these skilled professionals due to unfavourable working conditions and rising demands in the education sector. Subsequently, the migration of these teachers causes a disruption, weakening the structure of schools as these teachers are oftentimes flexible, adaptable, and in most cases possess the necessary knowledge and skills

Caribbean Essays:

Caribbean Discourse Édouard Glissant, 1989 Selected essays from the rich and complex collection of Edouard Glissant one of the most prominent writers and intellectuals of the Caribbean examine the psychological sociological and philosophical implications of cultural dependency Edouard Glissant's Caribbean Discourse is an unflaggingly ambitious attempt to read the Caribbean and the New World experience not as a response to fixed univocal meaning imposed by the past but as an infinitely varied dauntingly inexhaustible text Ethnicity in the Caribbean Gert Oostindie, 2005-10-01 Race and biologized conceptions of ethnicity have been potent factors in the making of the Americas They remain crucial even if more ambiguously than before This collection of essays addresses the workings of ethnicity in the Caribbean a part of the Americas where from the early days of empire through today's post colonial limbo this phenomenon has arguably remained in the center of public society as well as private life These analyses of race and nation building increasingly significant in today's world are widely pertinent to the study of current and international relations The ten prominent scholars contributing to this book focus on the significance of ethnicity for social structure and national identity in the Caribbean Their essays span a period from the initial European colonization right through today's paradoxical balance sheet of decolonization They deal with the entire region as well as the significance of the diaspora and the continuing impact of metropolitan linkages The topics addressed vary from the international repercussions of Haiti's black revolution through the position of French Caribbean blacks and the Barbadian redlegs to race in revolutionary Cuba from Puerto Rican dance etiquette through the Latin American and Caribbean identity essay to the discourse of Dominican nationhood and from a muse imaginaire in Guyane through Jamaica's post independence culture to the predicament of Dutch Caribbean decolonization Taken together these essays provide a rare and extraordinarily rich comparative perspective to the study of ethnicity as a crucial factor shaping both intimate relations and the public and even international dimension of Caribbean societies Here and Elsewhere Gerald Guinness, 1993 Through the essays included in this text we can attest to Gerald Guinness stature as an intelligent innovative WHAT DID HE SAY WHAT DID HE MEAN THE ETHNOGRAPHY OF DISCOURSE IN PUERTO RICO

Passion & Exile Frank Birbalsingh, 1988 This wide ranging collection of essays offers an illuminating commentary on the literary and social history of the English speaking Caribbean The themes of race colour exile and displacement are explored with precision and interviews with the authors yield unusual insights into the making of Caribbean literature The South and the Caribbean Douglass Sullivan-González, Charles Reagan Wilson, 2007-06 The first comprehensive study of the close ties between the American South and the Caribbean With essays and commentaries by Roger D Abrahams Kenneth Bilby David Eltis Stanley L Engerman Aline Helg Milton Jamail Charles Joyner Daniel C Littlefield Bonham C Richardson and Ralph Lee Woodward Jr Download Plain Text version With the trade of sugar rum and African slaves in the islands that form a perimeter around the Gulf of Mexico the broad expanse of water known as the Caribbean ringed what came to be known as the South Today concise political boundaries separate the coasts of the American South from the multicultural worlds that dominate the islands Yet all anecdotal evidence suggests far greater ties One listens to the reggae in the streets of New Orleans or to the rumba in Atlanta One notes the moans of the blues in the cafes of Veracruz and watches Major League games in which young Dominican athletes hurling lightning fast balls become national heroes on their island homeland beset by political and economic woes Do these human links suggest a greater regionalism than was previously acknowledged This exciting study of two discrete yet kindred areas gives an affirmative answer It comes to terms with what many have considered distinct yet fluctuating boundaries that separate and bond southern peoples These papers from the Chancellor s Symposium at the University of Mississippi in 1998 focus on and examine the strong connections Geographer Bonham C Richardson analyzes the territory as a cultural region with Little Rock at the northwest corner and French Guiana at the southeast that also includes the eastern rim of Central America as well as the Bahamas Other contributors explore the creative cultures that emerged when a brutal European economy enslaved Africans for labor The essays also examine the economic connections that have created such dissimilar and lasting legacies as the plantation system and the love of baseball The South and the Caribbean flow into each other culturally economically and socially These papers and their commentaries suggest that future study of these regions must deal with them together in order to understand each The merging of the two through music dance language sports and political aspiration all discussed in this book serves to give birth to a New South and a New Caribbean At the University of Mississippi Douglass Sullivan Gonz lez is an associate professor of history and Charles Reagan Wilson is the director of the Center for the Study of Southern Culture

Essays Susan Roberson, 2013-08-12
Positioning the Caribbean within the complexes of the world community this collection uses the metaphor of the global Caribbean to discuss the multiple movements identities epistemologies and politics of the West Indies Examining the processes of the transnational transport of peoples languages and literatures between the Caribbean Africa Europe and North America the essays look at the complexities of geographical intellectual and artistic migrations at the ways Caribbean writers negotiate the construction of literary and political identities and the ways in which the Caribbean influenced writers and thinkers in North America or Europe These kinds of reciprocal exchanges locate the islands of the Caribbean within a global context as recipients of multi and trans national influence and as makers of transnational meaning Building on the dynamic processes of globalization this collection suggests that the Caribbean provides a perspective for thinking about multiple intercultural connections with the Caribbean that include antebellum New Englanders the Jews of twentieth century Europe literary artists of seventeenth and eighteenth century England and France and modern pleasure seekers A culturally and linguistically rich region of the world the Caribbean also provides a fascinating literature of its own that is complicated by its history of migration and colonization as well as by its location between continents

Reading/Speaking/Writing the Mother Text; Essays on Caribbean Women's Writing Cristina Herrera,Paula Sanmartín,2015-08-01 While scholarship on Caribbean women s literature has grown into an established discipline there are not many studies explicitly connected to the maternal subject matter and among them only a few book length texts have focalized motherhood and maternity in writings by Caribbean women Reading Speaking Writing the Mother Text Essays on Caribbean Women's Writing encourages a crucial dialogue surrounding the state of motherhood scholarship within the Caribbean literary landscape to call for attention on a theme that although highly visible remains understudied by academics. While this collection presents a similar comparative and diasporic approach to other book length studies on Caribbean women's writing it deals with the complexity of including a wider geographical linguistic ethnic and generic diversity while exposing the myriad ways in which Caribbean women authors shape and construct their texts to theorize motherhood, mothering, maternity and mother-daughter relationships.

West Indies Accounts Richard B. Sheridan, 1996. Collection of essays written by former students, colleagues and friends to honor a preeminent economic historian of the Caribbean. Covering period 1650-1850, essays encompass a broad range of topics with major focus on various aspects of slavery and imperial relations during those years. Excellent introductory essay on Sheridan's contributions to Caribbean economic history.

Revisiting Caribbean Labour Constance R. Sutton, 2005. This retrospective on past Caribbean labour struggles provides the beginnings of a region-wide comparative perspective. Extending initial insights from the Anglophone to the Hispanic Caribbean and from the momentous upheavals of the 1930s to the present, the essays examine the pivotal role which labour has played and continues to play in shaping not only the political culture of the region and its history but also its domestic and social organization. Moreover, the essays tease out many of the activities and much of the activism which has been obscured not only by biases in the historical record but by those of the labour leadership. Thus, the role of women in labour and revolutionary activities and the role of memory on historical consciousness and contemporary activism are crucially brought to the surface. Revisiting Caribbean Labour is written to provide today's Caribbean labour movements with an understanding of their history that can help them more effectively face the challenges of today. It is an expansion and tribute to the work of O. Nigel Bolland on the British Caribbean.

Caribbean Portraits Christine Barrow, 1998. Since the 1970s the study of gender issues as they relate to the Caribbean has gone through several reinterpretations. The respectable wife and mother stereotype was replaced by that of the powerful matriarch which was in turn challenged by studies exposing the poverty and vulnerability of women not only of Afro-Caribbean descent but Indian, white and coloured middle class women. These reinterpretations signal a departure from the European, American and African feminist scholarship; indeed Caribbean feminists are beginning to accept that perhaps the Caribbean woman does not exist. Caribbean Portraits makes its contribution by focusing on issues of gender ideology and identity. The articles in the collection ask simple but fundamental questions: Who are Caribbean women and who are Caribbean men? How do gender ideologies and stereotypes define them and how in turn do they respond? How are gender identities and relations formed and how do imperialism, capitalism, racism, race and culture affect these identities and relationships?
