Canopy Arthropods Nigel E. Stork, Joachim Adis, Raphael K. Didham, 1997 As forests are cut down altered and fragmented the communities of organisms associated with them are also affected Predictions of global species extinction rates based on forest loss range 1% to 10% each decade Because arthropods comprise the largest component of animal species richness it is inevitable that many arthropod species will become extinct Millions of these species are thought to live in the forest canopy During the last twenty years recognition of the importance of canopy arthropods to global biodiversity and the crucial roles arthropods play in forests has led to a revolution in the study and understanding of the arthropod community structure in the forest canopy Recent advances have been greatly aided by the development of improved sampling techniques and new methods of access to the forest canopy Canopy Arthropods brings together for the first time a wide range of the most recent studies of arthropods living in forest canopies and comes from a truly international team of contributors

Arthropods of Tropical Forests Yves Basset, 2003-01-23 Arthropods are the most diverse group of organisms on our planet and the tropical rainforests represent the most biologically diverse of all ecosystems This book written by 79 authors contributing to 35 chapters aims to provide an overview of data collected during recent studies in Australia Africa Asia and South America The book focuses on the distribution of arthropods and their use of resources in the rainforest canopies providing a basis for comparison between the forest ecosystems of the main biogeographical regions Topics covered include the distribution of arthropods along vertical gradients and the relationship between the soil litter habitat and the forest canopy The temporal dynamics of arthropod communities habitats and food selection are examined within and among tropical tree crowns as are the effects of forest disturbance This important book is a valuable addition to the literature used by community ecologists conservation biologists entomologists botanists and forestry experts

Ecology of Lianas Stefan Schnitzer, Frans Bongers, Robyn J. Burnham, Francis E. Putz, 2014-10-24 Lianas are woody vines that were the focus of intense study by early ecologists such as Darwin who devoted an entire book to the natural history of climbing plants Over the past quarter century there has been a resurgence in the study of lianas and liana are again recognized as important components of many forests particularly in the tropics The increasing amount of research on lianas has resulted in a fundamentally deeper understanding of liana ecology evolution and life history as well as the myriad roles lianas play in forest dynamics and functioning This book provides insight into the ecology and evolution of lianas their anatomy physiology and natural history their global abundance and distribution and their wide ranging effects on the myriad organisms that inhabit tropical and temperate forests

Tropical Forest Canopies: Ecology and Management K.E. Linsenmair, Andrew Davis, B. Fiala, M.R. Speight, 2013-03-14 Almost half of all life on earth may exist in the world's forest canopies They may also play a vital role in maintaining the planet's climate yet they remain largely unexplored owing to difficulties of access They are renowned for their great diversity and role in forest functioning yet there are still great gaps in the understanding of this last biological frontier This seminal book shows how canopy science is now in a position to answer many of the outstanding questions among which are some of the most pressing environmental issues society is presently facing It represents a major summary of the current understanding of canopy ecology and maps a path forward into a greater understanding of tropical forest ecology and management at a time when the very future of this ecosystem is threatened by humanity's actions
