

The Birth of Modern Science

People of the 1500s-1700s witnessed great scientific and intellectual advances.

NICOLAUS COPERNICUS
Polish astronomer who challenged the view that the sun revolved around the earth. He suggested that earth revolved around the sun.

ANTOINE LAVOISIER
French scientist who founded the science of chemistry and explained how animals and plants use oxygen in respiration.

SIR ISAAC NEWTON
English scientist who formulated the laws of gravity and motion.

The scientific approach also to the birth of modern psychology in the 1800s.

Psychologists argued that ideas about human behavior and mental processes should be supported by evidence.

Laboratories in Europe and the US had psychologists who studied the behavior and mental processes using methods similar to those Lavoisier had used to study chemistry.

JOHN LOCKE
English Philosopher, built on principles of associationism, theorized that knowledge is not inherent but is learned from experience.

JOHANNES KEPLER
Kepler was a brilliant mathematician who had a mystical vision of the mathematical perfection of the universe that owed a great deal to the ancient Greek mathematician Pythagoras.

Most historians of psychology point to the year 1879 as the beginning of psychology as a modern laboratory science.

In that year, German psychologist Wilhelm Wundt established his laboratory in Leipzig.
