Section: THEORETICAL NOTES ABSTRACT

Birth order has long been discussed as an important influence on human behavior; some have even posited an evolutionary basis for this phenomenon. Birth Order And Political Behavior:

Birth Order and Political Behavior Albert Somit, Alan Arwine, Steven A. Peterson, 1996 This book provides a careful examination of the possible influence of birth order on political achievement and behavior The authors look at American presidents Supreme Court justices United States senators and representatives and the careers of an entire West Point class For a comparative dimension they also study British Prime Ministers U N Secretaries General post Renaissance popes leaders of the U S S R and great generals through the ages What the authors find is that there is no measurable relationship between birth order and being first born and political achievement and behavior These findings cast considerable doubt on the long standing belief that birth order has an important impact on either achievement or behavior The authors clarify that very few studies suggesting such a relationship do not stand up under careful scrutiny This basic conclusion and other curious findings from the study make Birth Order And Political Behavior insightful reading for almost any behavioral scientist The book will also be relevant to courses in child development clinical psychology psychiatry political science anthropology and sociology The Nurture Assumption Judith Rich Harris, 2011-10-25 A NEW YORK TIMES NOTABLE BOOK How much credit do parents deserve when their children turn out well How much blame when they turn out badly Judith Rich Harris has a message that will change parents lives The nurture assumption the belief that what makes children turn out the way they do aside from their genes is the way their parents bring them up is nothing more than a cultural myth This electrifying book explodes some of our unquestioned beliefs about children and parents and gives us a radically new view of childhood Harris looks with a fresh eye at the real lives of real children to show that it is what they experience outside the home in the company of their peers that matters most Parents don't socialize children children socialize children With eloquence and humor Judith Harris explains why parents have little power to determine the sort of people their children will become The Nurture Assumption is an important and entertaining work that brings together insights from psychology sociology anthropology primatology and evolutionary biology to offer a startling new view of who we are and how we got that way

Why Leaders Fight Michael C. Horowitz, Allan C. Stam, Cali M. Ellis, 2015-09-29 The history of political events is made by people From wars to elections to political protests the choices we make our actions how we behave dictate events Not all individuals have the same impact on our world and our lives Some peoples choices alter the pathways that history takes In particular national chief executives play a large role in forging the destinies of the countries they lead Why Leaders Fight is about those world leaders and how their beliefs world views and tolerance for risk and military conflict are shaped by their life experiences before they enter office military family occupation and more Using in depth research on important leaders and the largest set of data on leader backgrounds ever gathered the authors of Why Leaders Fight show that within the constraints of domestic political institutions and the international system who ends up in office plays a critical role in determining when and why countries go to war

Urbatsch,2014-08-01 One of the central questions in politics is from where people derive their tastes and opinions Why do some people embrace the free market while others prefer an interventionist state From where do preferences for a vigorous foreign policy or for sterner policing of moral issues come As has been shown political preferences may be influenced by perceived benefits the media or public intellectuals but less is known about the influence of family on political attitudes Some mechanisms of family influence are well known people tend to share their parents political philosophies while those with young children have heightened concern for child related policies such as education But family dynamics are likely to have far richer and more varied effects on political attitudes than those traditionally considered Families Values considers the ways that the everyday behaviors of family members systematically and unconsciously influence political preferences For example does having a mother who works outside the home lead children when grown up to have more liberal ideologies Or might having a son who could potentially be drafted into the armed forces influence a parent to become a pacifist Drawing on surveys from the United States and the United Kingdom R Urbatsch looks at the ways in which parents siblings birth order gender and socioeconomics influence opinions on issues from war to the welfare state to abortion Through compelling analysis he demonstrates that our family relationships play an enormously crucial and multi faceted role in the way that we experience learn about and practice politics Journal of Political Science ,1981 United States Political Science Documents ,1991 Annual Conference Proceedings - University of East Africa.
