Birds By Night:

Birds by Night Graham Martin,1990 For many people watching and studying birds is exclusively a day time activity However for many birds twilight and night time are not a barrier to useful activity It is true that very few birds are exclusively nocturnal but many birds which are active by day also conduct limited and often crucial activities after dusk This book examines many examples of the nocturnal behaviour of birds from the occasional night feeding of wildfowl and shorebirds to the night singing and night migration of certain passerines and from the location of nest sites by sea birds to the nocturnal foraging of owls and nightjars The special cases of flightless nocturnal birds and those birds which dwell in lightless caves are also considered Throughout this survey considers not only what it is that birds do at night but also discusses how these nocturnal activities are possible It brings together studies in field ornithology sensory science ecology and physics and involves comparisons of the sensory capacities of other animals including man It is shown how the senses of hearing smell and touch as well as vision play a crucial role in many of the night time activities of birds However these senses are not always adequate for fully explaining how nocturnal behaviours are executed To achieve this we must look at the complex of relationships between behavioural and sensory adaptations and the particular environments which birds inhabit from dusk to dawn Jacket paintings by John Busby Bloomsbury Publishing

Whether it be seen slicing the wave tips of a stormy sea or uttering its weird strident cry in the night sky above a breeding colony, it has all the magic that a bird lover could wish for and many of the characteristics that make seabirds of such interest to biologists. For the better part of 17 years, Michael Brooke has studied Manx Shearwaters at their Atlantic colonies. A number of expeditions have also enabled him to investigate at first hand other shearwater and petrel species in many isolated parts of the world. In this book, he describes the fruits of his own and other research, synthesizing a wealth of data for the scientist and amateur alike. The breeding biology, vocal behaviour, transequatorial migrations, and population dynamics of the bird are described in detail, and comparisons are drawn with other shearwaters and petrels to show how the various species have adapted to local conditions worldwide. Delightful vignettes by Dafila Scott complete this enthralling book. Jacket painting by Peter Harrison.      The Gentleman's Magazine, 1891
