South America's Andean highlands have seen the rise and decline of several impressive indigenous civilizations Separated somewhat in time and place each developed its distinctive socio cultural accouterments but all shared a need to adjust to the individual societal and environmental limitations imposed by life at high altitude Partial oxygen pressure temperature and humidity fall systematically as altitude rises but there are other changes as well Darwin Forbes von Humboldt von Tschudi and other naturalists of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries who weaved their way through South America commented repeatedly on the tolerance or apparent indifference of the indigenes to the rigors of life at altitudes above 3000 meters but its impact upon lowlanders Von Tschudi 1847 for example observed in the cordillera the effect of the diminished atmospheric pressure on the human frame shows itself in intolerable symptoms of weariness and an extreme difficulty of breathing The first symptoms are usually felt at the elevation of 12 600 feet 3800 m above the sea These symptoms are vertigo dimness of sight and hearing pains in the head and nausea Inhabitants of the coast and Europeans who for the first time visit the lofty regions of the cordillera are usually attacked with this disorder But von Tschudi's description of acute mountain sickness was hardly the first his Spanish predecessors had known and commented upon it too      Encyclopedia of Special Education Cecil R.
