William McKinley Harris

Black Community Development:

Chain of Change Mel King, 1981 Chain of Change is a history of the black community in Boston from the fifties through the seventies Mel King shows how black consciousness and power have developed through the struggles around jobs housing education and politics For the future he proposes a strategy of community controlled economic development and political representation which is relevant to any major city Upbuilding Black Durham Leslie Brown, 2008 In the 1910s both W E B Du Bois and Booker T Washington praised the black community in Durham North Carolina for its exceptional race progress Migration urbanization and industrialization had turned black Durham from a post Civil War liberation Black Community Development William McKinley Harris, 1976 African American Community Practice Models Iris Carlton-LaNey, N. Yolanda Burwell, 1996 African American Community Practice Models shows you what you can see and learn when people of African American descent are put in the center of community analysis and change This text celebrates African American experiences and challenges you to understand the black experience from the inside out rather than from the outside in The contributors provide excellent historical and current case studies of leaders and programs that provide you with models for program and community development in African American communities today For the contemporary social worker these historical comparisons reveal what strategies have been needed in African American communities in the past because of political and social climates The studies of current successful programs instruct those in community based African American programs general service networks and students on how to continue to better serve the black community The contributing authors use a new lens for understanding social welfare history and social service development They encourage social workers to explore new model building and to pursue new knowledge about African Americans in the social work classroom In addition to tracing the history of community development African American Community Practice Models specifically presents the black community from a position of strength and leadership documents leadership in the black community to ground national advocacy organizations traces women s leadership in community development documents the unrecognized history of African Americans in the development of the Settlement Movement highlights examples of current self help programs sponsored by African American communities to change negative behavior patterns documents the impact of racism on service delivery and the response to develop community support programs presents a challenge to expand community development for both internal and external advocacy Professors of the core courses in social work HBSE research policy and practice and of specialized courses in community practice macropractice and African Americans would benefit from teaching from African American Community Practice Models Students and faculty in these and other study areas concerned with this community will get community tactics and program development ideas from this book that connect with African American people The importance of community development from within the African American community historical and current methods of dealing with the ongoing impact of racism and economic disadvantage the responsibility of professionals and community leaders to build empowerment strategies within African American communities and the need to advocate for rights and opportunities in larger society for black Americans are key issues addressed throughout the book which begins to fill the void of positive presentations of black community development

African American Community Development (with Twelve Case Studies) William M. Harris (Sr.), 2012 The author responds to the failure of race neutral actions under the auspices of community development to eradicate oppression and dehumanization that arrests the growth of urban black communities and proposes approaches to community development in African American areas by illuminating the role of race and offering solutions to overcome the structural impediments in U S Society that race produces

The Economics of Black Community Development Frank Green Davis, 1972

The Business of Black Power Laura Warren Hill, Julia Rabig, 2012 Explores business development in the Black power era and the centrality of economic goals to the larger black freedom movement The Business of Black Power emphasizes the centrality of economic goals to the larger black freedom movement and explores the myriad forms of business development in the Black power era This volume charts a new course for Black power studies and business history exploring both the business ventures that Black power fostered and the impact of Black power on the nation s business world Black activists pressed business leaders corporations and various levels of government into supporting a range of economic development ventures from Black entrepreneurship to grassroots experiments in economic self determination to indigenous attempts to rebuild inner city markets in the wake of disinvestment They pioneered new economic and development strategies often in concert with corporate executives and public officials Yet these same actors also engaged in fierce debates over the role of business in strengthening the movement and some African Americans outright rejected capitalism or collaboration with business The ten scholars in this collection bring fresh analysis to this complex intersection of African American and business history to reveal how Black power advocates or those purporting a Black power agenda engaged business to advance their economic political and social goals They show the business of Black power taking place in the streets boardrooms journals and periodicals corporations courts and housing projects of America In short few were left untouched by the influence of this movement Laura Warren Hill is assistant professor of history at Bloomfield College Julia Rabig is a lecturer at Dartmouth College

Garfield Davis, 1977 Urban Planning, Community Development and the Systematic Abuse of African- American Communities Matthew Stelly, 2018-02-06 This book like all of my texts offers critique and commentary of those institutions and cornerstone organizations that play pivotal roles in impacting upon the black community Most books about these institutions are descriptive and consist of fluff pieces outlining the well meaning programs and projects that are employed that are aimed at helping the disadvantaged but for some reason always fail But of course any failure is immediately attributed to the people and never to the institutions In other words those who are ghettoized are victimized twice one for being victims and a second time for being stupid enough to believe that the system really gives a damn about them This book Urban Planning Community Development and the Systematic Abuse of African American Communities Contextual Appraisal Commentary and Critique hopes to inspire and evoke change in the existing approaches paradigms and praxis being created and promoted by urban planners developers and contractors It is because of these groups following the decisions and master plans laid out by mayors and others that have under developed black communities all over America With the help of handpicked lackeys and ministers this is the best way to describe how on going abject poverty has been perpetuated and maintained The book consists of chapters made up of papers that I have written over the years When combined I believe that this is about as comprehensive a work that has been written that addresses race urban discrimination code enforcement and related issues that deal with the on going segregation and compartmentalization that continue to plague this society and as a result continues to do harm to minority communities ghetto barrio reservation all over America The first section The Social Aspects of Urban Renewal From 1958 to 2012 is essentially a review of an article that provides the history of a program that did much harm to black areas in the name of development The second section Legal Aspects of Urban Planning shows the role that laws have played in buttressing the segregation redlining steering blockbusting restrictive covenants and other ploys that were used to create and maintain the ghetto Also in this section is important information on the role of zoning and code enforcement and various housing programs that made tens of millions of dollars for developers and planners and left black communities oftentimes too weak to do anything but wander The third section deals with so called minority participation in these various programs and how planning departments pimp and placate the masses through various master plans on their way to maintaining racial segregation The target city is Omaha Nebraska a hick town that has bilked its black community of 50 000 out of just over 250 million dollars since 1975 Section four is titled Keys to Empowerment and defines the term empowerment because it is a buzzword that is often used by those who are encroaching invading black communities in the name of development Various long term urban planning models will also be explained The fifth and final section addresses what I call anticipatory repudiation In a nutshell it is also known as an anticipatory breach and is a term in the law of contracts that describes a declaration by the promising party to a contract that he or she does not intend to live up to his or her obligations under the contract Wikipedia 2017 In this context the various cities that receive Federal funding and then refuse to do right by black communities are in violation and as a result should be repudiated by both the funding source as well as the neglected victims

Health Issues in the Black Community Ronald L. Braithwaite, Sandra E. Taylor, Henrie M. Treadwell, 2009-10-22 Health Issues in the Black Community THIRD EDITION The outstanding editors and authors of Health Issues in the Black Community have placed in clear perspective the challenges and opportunities we face in working to achieve the goal of health equity in America David Satcher MD PhD 16th Surgeon General of the United States and director Satcher Health Leadership Institute at Morehouse School of Medicine Eliminating health disparities must be a central goal of any forward thinking national health policy Health Issues in the Black Community makes a valuable contribution to a much needed dialogue by focusing on the challenges of the black community Marc Morial Esq president National Urban League Health Issues in the Black Community illuminates comprehensively the range of health conditions specifically affecting African Americans and the health disparities both within the black community and between racial and ethnic groups Each chapter whether addressing the health of African Americans by age gender type of disease condition or behavior is well detailed and tells an important story Together they offer practitioners consumers scholars and policymakers a crucial roadmap to address and change the social determinants of health reduce disparities and create more equal treatment for all Americans Risa Lavizzo Mourey MD MBA president Robert Wood Johnson Foundation I recommend Health Issues in the Black Community as a must read for anyone concerned about the future of the African American community Health disparities continues to be one of the major issues confronting the black community This book will help to highlight the issues and keep attention focused on the work to be done Elsie Scott PhD president of the Congressional Black Caucus Foundation This book is the definitive examination of health issues in black America issues sadly overlooked and downplayed in our culture and society I congratulate Drs Braithwaite Taylor and Treadwell for their monumental book Cornel West PhD professor Princeton University Black Community Development Through the Organizational Structure : the Internship Practicum Ronald Shelton Swann, 1981 A Comprehensive Approach to Black Community Development Emphasizing Empowerment Through Collective Participation Marguerite Harper Scott, Duke University. Graduate Liberal Studies Program, 1988 Research in Education ,1974 Resources in Education ,1978-05 Liberation and Development Leslie Anne Hadfield, 2016-05-01 Liberation and Development Black Consciousness Community Programs in South Africa is an account of the community development programs of the Black Consciousness movement in South Africa It covers the emergence of the movement s ideas and practices in the context of the late 1960s and early 1970s then analyzes how activists refined their practices mobilized resources and influenced people through their work The book examines this history primarily through the Black Community Programs organization and its three major projects the yearbook Black Review the Zanele Community Health Center and the Njwaxa leatherwork factory As opposed to better known studies of antipolitical macroeconomic initiatives this book shows that people from the so called global South led development in innovative ways that promised to increase social and political participation It particularly explores the power that youth women and churches had in leading change in a hostile political environment With this new perspective on a major liberation movement Hadfield not only causes us to rethink aspects of African history but also offers lessons from the past for African societies still dealing with developmental challenges similar to those faced during apartheid Blacks in Niagara Falls: Leaders and Community Development, 1850-1985 Michael B. Boston, 2021-08 A detailed study of the history of African Americans in a small upstate New York city from the days of the Underground Railroad to the deindustrialization of the 1980s Community Development in Black Ghettoes William McKinley Harris, 1974 Cumulative List of Organizations Described in Section 170 (c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, 2003
