Chinese Medical Modernization AnElissa Lucas,1982

Childbirth in Republican China Tina Phillips

Johnson,2011-09-16 Childbirth in Republican China Delivering Modernity 1911 1949 is the study of a pivotal period in which traditional midwifery marked by private unregulated old style midwives was transformed into modern midwifery through the adoption of a highly medicalized and state sponsored birth model that is standard in urban China today In the twentieth century biomedical technologies altered the process of childbirth on virtually every level What had been a matter of private interest focusing on thefamily and lineage became a national priority a symbol of the new citizen who would participate in the creation of a revitalized nation This transformation of reproduction coalesces with the broader story of China s twentieth century revolutions marked by an emphasis on science and modernity The roles of the state and of western medical personnel were paramount in affecting these changes but equally important are the intense social and cultural shifts that occurred simultaneously The dominant themes of reproduction in twentieth century China are characterized by expanding state involvement shifting gender roles escalating consumption patterns accompanying the commercialization of private lives and the increasing medicalization of the birth process

China and the Globalization of Biomedicine David

Health Insurance Reforms in Asia Sabrina Luk,2014-03-26 This book empirically examines health care financing reforms and popular responses in three major cities in East Asia Shanghai Singapore and Hong Kong It adopts a new revised version of the theory of historical institutionalism to compare and explain the divergent reform paths in these three places over the past three decades It also examines forces that propel institutional change The book provides three detailed case studies on the development of health care financing reforms and the politics of implementing them It shows that health care systems in Shanghai Singapore and Hong Kong were the products of Western presence in the nineteenth century It illustrates how greater attention is paid to the roles played by ideas actors and environmental triggers without abandoning the core assumptions that political institutions and policy feedback remain central to impact health care financing reforms It shows that health care financing reform is shaped by a complex interplay of forces over time It also provides the most updated material about health care financing reforms in Shanghai Singapore and Hong Kong The central argument of this book is that health care financing reform is both an evolving process responding to changing circumstances and a political process revealing an intricate interplay of power relationships and diverse interests It shows that institutional changes in health care financing system can be incremental but transformative in nature It argues that social policies will continue to develop and welfare states will continue to adapt and evolve in order to cope with new risks and needs This book sheds new lights on understanding the politics of health care financing reform and sources and modes of institutional change
