Chinese Russian Relations:

The Future of China-Russia Relations James A. Bellacqua, 2010-02-05 Relations between China and Russia have evolved dramatically since their first diplomatic contact particularly during the twentieth century During the past decade China and Russia have made efforts to strengthen bilateral ties and improve cooperation on a number of diplomatic fronts The People s Republic of China and the Russian Federation maintain exceptionally close and friendly relations strong geopolitical and regional cooperation and significant levels of trade In The Future of China Russia Relations scholars from around the world explore the current state of the relationship between the two powers and assess the prospects for future cooperation and possible tensions in the new century The contributors examine Russian and Chinese perspectives on a wide range of issues including security political relationships economic interactions and defense ties This collection explores the energy courtship between the two nations and analyzes their interests and policies regarding Central Asia the Korean Peninsula and Taiwan

Russia and China Michal Lubina, 2017-10-23 This book depicts the sophisticated relationship between Russia and China as a pragmatic one a political marriage of convenience Yet at the same time the relationship is stable and will remain so After all bilateral relations are usually based on pragmatic interests and the pursuit of these interests is the very essence of foreign policy And as often happens in life the most long lasting marriages are those based on convenience The highly complex complicated ambiguous and yet indeed successful relationship between Russia and China throughout the past 25 years is difficult to grasp theoretically Russian and Chinese elites are hard core realists in their foreign policies and the neorealist school in international relations seems to be the most adequate one to research Sino Russian relations Realistically throughout this period China achieved a multidimensional advantage over Russia Yet simultaneously Russia China relations do not follow the patterns of power politics Beijing knows its limits and does not go into extremes Rather China successfully seeks to build a longterm stable relationship based on Chinese terms where both sides gain albeit China gains a little more Russia in this agenda does not necessary lose just gains a little less out of this asymmetric deal Thus a new model of bilateral relations emerges which may be called by paraphrasing the slogan of Chinese diplomacy as asymmetric win win formula This model is a kind of back to the past a contemporary equivalent of the first model of Russia China relations the modus vivendi from the 17th century achieved after the Nerchinsk treaty

China and Russia Alexander Lukin, 2018-03-16 With many predicting the end of US hegemony Russia and China s growing cooperation in a number of key strategic areas looks set to have a major impact on global power dynamics But what lies behind this Sino Russian rapprochement Is it simply the result of deteriorated Russo US and Sino US relations or does it date back to a more fundamental alignment of interests after the Cold War In this book Alexander Lukin answers these questions offering a deeply informed and nuanced assessment of Russia and China s ever closer ties Tracing the evolution of this partnership from the 1990s to the present day he shows how economic and geopolitical interests drove the two countries together in spite of political and cultural differences Key areas of cooperation and possible conflict are explored from bilateral trade and investment to immigration and security Ultimately Lukin argues that China and Russia's strategic partnership is part of a growing system of cooperation in the non-Western world which has also seen the emergence of a new political community Greater Eurasia His vision of the new China Russia rapprochement will be essential reading for anyone interested in understanding this evolving partnership and the way in which it is altering the contemporary geopolitical landscape

Russia-China Relations Jyotsna Bakshi, 2004 The Relations Between Russia And China One Of The Largest State In The World From Point Of View Of Territory And The Other From Point Of View Of Population Have Always Impacted On The Course Of The Global And Regional Geopolitics No Wonder The Course

Strategic Partners Jeanne Lorraine Wilson, 2004 Analysing Russia's evolving foreign policy with regard to China Jeanne Wilson considers the various influences and constraints on this policy looking particularly at economic policy integration into global economic structures and military relations

Russia-China Relations Sarah Kirchberger, Svenja Sinjen, Nils Wörmer, 2022-06-15 This open access book examines Russia China relations across a variety of civilian and military areas of cooperation Leading experts in the field present empirical case studies covering a wide range of strategic cooperation areas between Russia and China such as technological military economic and political cooperation The contributing authors shed new light on Chinese and Russian strategic goals external push and pull factors and mutual perception shifts and discuss the options for Western countries to influence this development This book analyses the evolution of the relationship since the watershed moment of the Crimean crisis in 2014 and whether or not a full blown military alliance as hinted in late 2020 by President Putin is indeed a realistic scenario for which NATO will have to prepare It will appeal to students and scholars of international relations political decision makers as well as anyone interested in Eurasian politics and the potential military strategic impact of a Russian Chinese alliance for NATO

The United States and Contemporary China-Russia Relations Brandon K. Yoder, 2022-04-28 China and Russia have grown progressively closer over the last two decades yielding a China Russia axis uniquely capable of challenging the United States and of revising key aspects of the international order Although the scholarly literature has offered detailed descriptions and various ad hoc explanations of this trend the Sino Russian bilateral relationship has been the subject of very little scrutiny using rigorous theory which has precluded the formation of logically coherent and empirically supported explanations for increasing China Russia cooperation Moreover the cooperative post Cold War trend in the bilateral relationship is puzzling for each of the major paradigms of international relations theory realism constructivism and liberalism This volume brings together leading IR scholars from various theoretical perspectives as well as theoretically informed experts in Chinese and Russian foreign policy The chapters develop and apply nuanced theoretical arguments to derive testable hypotheses for the cooperative trend in China Russia relations In contrast to existing scholarship the book offers generalizable insights that both improve our understanding of a crucially important contemporary case while also advancing IR theory in substantial ways

China-Russia Security Relations : Strategic Parallelism Without Partnership Or Passion? Richard Weitz,2008

The China-Russia Relationship Robert Hamilton,2024-10-24 This book takes a new approach to examining the relationship between China and Russia departing from the standard debate over whether the relationship is a true strategic partnership or merely an axis of convenience Instead the book argues that the best way to gain an understanding of ties between Beijing and Moscow is to watch how they interact on the ground in regions of the world where they both have important interests at stake It provides an in depth analysis of Chinese Russian interaction in Africa Central Asia and East Asia as well as an analysis of China s response to Russia s invasion of Ukraine The picture of the relationship that emerges portrays its dynamic complex and contingent nature and reveals areas of convergence and divergence between these two powers In doing so it provides a new perspective useful to both scholars and policymakers

China-Russia Relations in Central Asia Thomas Stephan Eder,2013-08-13 As China rises to global power status its relations with other major powers including Russia are constantly renegotiated Energy figures prominently in both countries foreign policy An extensive analysis of Chinese language sources academic debate 1997 2012 confirms a collision of interests over Central Asian reserves While unanimous appeals to compromise render previous predictions of impending confrontation unconvincing descriptions of Sino Central Asian energy relations as central to energy security and the explicit rejection of a Russian sphere of influence also exclude a retreat In the long term China will likely replace Russia as the dominant force in Central Asia s energy sector causing the Kremlin to perceive another encroachment The current notion of a strategic partnership will inevitably be challenged

Russia-China Relations in the Post-Crisis International Order Marcin Kaczmarski,2015-03-24 The book explores developments in Russia China relations in the aftermath of the global economic crisis arguing that the crisis transformed their bilateral affairs regional liaisons and crucially altered the roles both states play on the international arena Discussing how Russo Chinese cooperation has accelerated in energy trade arms sales and in the Russian Far East the focus is on how the still mutually advantageous relationship has become more asymmetric than ever reflecting China s meteoric rise and Russia s decline These dynamics are explored through three perspectives domestic regional and global Domestically the book traces the role of political coalitions and key interest groups involved in how the two states shape their reciprocal policies Changes in the regional dimension are examined with particular reference to a new status quo emerging in Central Asia The book concludes by explaining how the changing relationship is affecting the international order including the balance of power vis vis the United States as well as Russia and China s changing attitudes towards global governance

The New China-Russia Alignment Richard Weitz, This volume identifies the main drivers of the current Sino Russian relationship assesses whether and under what conditions China and Russia would cooperate more extensively and effectively against American interests and recommends U S policies that could prevent such an outcome Most experts argue that economic interdependence nuclear weapons and the U S contribution to maintaining the global commons mean that China and Russia will generally accept U S military superiority and U S political supremacy in managing global affairs An agreement between these two powerful countries to work against the United States however would greatly increase its vulnerabilities Relations between the governments of China and Russia with the U S have worsened in past years Identifying the various pathways events and political economic and military drivers that could shape the dynamics of the China Russia relationship is of critical importance to U S security This book examines the sources nuances and manifestations of the ongoing Sino Russian relationship in order to recommend strategy and policy that could work to U S advantage Written by an author who traveled extensively in both countries in order to conduct research and expert interviews for the work the book covers the latest developments to include the major changes in Chinese foreign policy under President Xi Jinping and ongoing relations with Russian president Vladimir Putin

Russia and China Alekseï Dmitrievich Voskresenskiï, 2003 This study incorporates elements from the disciplines of international relations and history to address key international and domestic elements that have shaped the interactions between Russia and China over time It demonstrates how changes in the inter state relationship were and are initiated Controversial issues are examined through previously unobtainable materials from sources including the Archives of Foreign Policy of the Russian Empire the Archives of Foreign Policy of the Russian Federation and the Russian Centre for the Preservation and Research of the Documents of Modern History

China-Russia Security Relations Richard Weitz, 2009-08-01 Since the end of the Cold War the improved political and economic relationship between Beijing and Moscow has affected a range of international security issues China and Russia have expanded their bilateral economic and security cooperation In addition Beijing and Moscow have pursued distinct yet parallel policies regarding many global and regional issues Yet Chinese and Russian approaches to a range of significant subjects are still largely uncoordinated and at times conflict Economic exchanges between China and Russia remain minimal compared to those found between most friendly countries let alone allies Although stronger Chinese Russian ties could present greater challenges to other states e g the establishment of a Beijing Moscow condominium over Central Asia several factors make it unlikely that the two countries will form such a bloc Unlike during the Cold War China and Russia no longer fear engaging in a shooting war For example the two countries have largely accepted their common border Yet tensions persist due to illegal Chinese immigration into Russia as well the inability of Chinese authorities to halt the spillover of pollution from China into Russia In particular Russians worry about the long term implications of China s exploding population for Russia s demographically and economically stagnant eastern regions a situation some Russian leaders already consider to be a major security threat In some respects China and Russia should be natural energy partners Chinese energy demand is soaring and Russia s oil and gas deposits lie much closer to China than the more distant energy sources Africa and the Persian Gulf Nonetheless economic and political differences relating to their energy security have continually divided the two countries reducing the prospects for creating an exclusive energy bloc in Eurasia For over a decade Russian military exports to China have constituted the most important dimension of the two countries security relationship Russian firms have derived substantial revenue from the sales which also helped sustain Russia s military industrial complex during the lean years of the 1990s China s People s Liberation Army PLA was able to acquire advanced conventional weapons that Chinese firms could not yet manufacture This situation is changing The Chinese defense industry has become capable of producing much more sophisticated armaments Moscow confronts the choice of either seeing its Chinese market decrease dramatically or agreeing to sell even more advanced weapons to Beijing with the risk of destabilizing military force balances in East Asia In their public rhetoric Chinese and Russian leaders appear the best of friends They speak as if they share a comprehensive vision of the direction in which they want the world to evolve over the next few years Their joint statements call for a multi polar international system in which the United Nations and international law determine decisions regarding the possible use of force Chinese and Russian government representatives also stress traditional interpretations of national sovereignty rather than the promotion of universal democratic values or other ideologies Yet Beijing and Moscow continue to differ on important global issues including ballistic missile defense BMD and military operations in space

The Arctic has been characterized by international cooperation but has recently emerged as a possible arena for great power rivalry A key question affecting development among most dimensions is the relationship between the largest Arctic state Russia and China with global ambitions also including the Arctic This edited volume provides an in depth analysis of the many aspects of Sino Russian relations in the Arctic From the geopolitical implications including consequences of the war in Ukraine to infrastructure cooperation to environmental aspects analyses are provided by top experts in their respective fields The edited volume aspires to give a realistic picture of the Sino Russian relationship shared as well as conflicting interests what is actually happening on the ground what are driving forces and obstacles for cooperation and importantly how can the bilateral relationship in the Arctic possibly impact international relations

Chinese Policy Toward Russia and the Central Asian Republics Mark Burles, 1999 This report examines the foundations of the People s Republic of China s policies toward Russia and the former Soviet Republics of Central Asia Kazakhstan Kyrgyzstan Tajikistan Turkmenistan and Uzbekistan In addition it discusses what factors will determine the evolution of China s relationships with these countries and how they might affect U S regional or global interests The study was conducted in the Strategy and Doctrine Program of Project AIR FORCE Comments may be directed to the author or Zalmay Khalilzad the program director

China's Energy and Security Relations with Russia Linda Jacobsen, 2011 Fifteen years have passed since China and Russia formed a strategic cooperative partnership in 1996 and 2011 marks the 10th anniversary of their 2001 Treaty of Good Neighbourliness and Friendly Cooperation Considering the significant changes that have taken place in China and Russia over this period it is well worth assessing the meaning of the China Russia strategic partnership and their declared good neighbourly relations The strategic partnership falls short of the aspirational official rhetoric of both sides There are three common threads in the views of Chinese policymakers and analysts regarding the China Russia partnership pragmatism lack of political trust and the US factor While some of the grander expectations of China Russia relations are unlikely to develop the two countries will nevertheless avoid antagonizing one another and will find common interests in a stable relationship The relationship may encounter tension over specific issues but it is relatively resistant to long term damage because of the pragmatism of both parties and the willingness to discuss differences behind closed doors China and Russia will continue to be pragmatic partners of convenience but not partners based on deeper shared world views and strategic interests In the coming years while relations will remain close at the diplomatic level the two cornerstones of the partnership over the past two decades military and energy cooperation will continue to crumble As a result Russia's significance to China will continue to diminish
