

Choiceless Choices: An Exploration of the Nine Principles of Economics in Relationship to the Holocaust

POWERPOINT SCRIPT

SLIDES

Slide #1

NOTES FOR TEACHER

Title slide

Slide #2

The Essential Assertion – To be educated is to be able to tell the story.

Educators may find value in using this assertion as a “home base,” for the year – a place to begin and end each lesson – so that students come to recognize that ownership of their education includes an articulation of their understandings, and that assimilating information in story form is a useful tool for future study.

Slide #3

Notes for slides #3-10

Introduction of terms: the etymology of the terms ‘Economics’, ‘Government,’ and ‘Holocaust’ are presented in these slides.

Educators can focus the lesson here by asking students about their prior understandings of the terms – teasing out “unspoken laws” of the students’ own homes in relationship to Economics – asking students about a ship captain as a metaphor for government, and exploring students’ prior knowledge of the Holocaust and how the definition “destruction by fire” applies.
