Strengthening Family Coping Resources Laurel Kiser, 2015-01-14 Strengthening Family Coping Resources SFCR uses a skill building multi family group framework to teach constructive resources to families who have a high exposure to stress and trauma As an intervention for high risk families SFCR can cause a reduction in symptoms of traumatic distress and behavior problems and help families demonstrate higher functioning The SFCR manual is based on a systemic family approach and uses empirically supported trauma treatment that focuses on family ritual storytelling and narration which improves communication and understanding within family members The manual is organized into three accessible parts Part 1 details the theoretical and empirical foundations of SFCR Part 2 focuses on implementation and the clinical guidelines for conducting SFCR Part 3 contains session guidelines focused on the multi family group versions of SFCR Each session included in the intervention is structured according to specific guidelines and instructions provide examples of what facilitators might say to a group Formed through the input of psychiatrists psychologists social workers and anthropologists Strengthening Family Coping Resources will help you reduce the symptoms of traumatic stress disorders and increase coping resources in children adult caregivers and the family system It also provides a novel approach to addressing co occurring traumatic reactions in multiple family members by including developmentally appropriate skill building activities that are reinforced with family practice For anyone working with families in a therapeutic capacity this manual is a must have resource

Coping with Prejudice Paul A. Holloway, 2009 Modern social psychology has devoted a significant share of its resources to the study of human prejudice Most research to date has focused on those groups that exhibit prejudice However a number of recent studies have begun to investigate prejudice from the perspective of its targets These studies have shown prejudice to be a powerful stressor that places unique and costly demands on its targets They have also identified a number of strategies that targets of prejudice use to cope with their predicaments These findings hold real promise for scholars of early Christianity for not only were early Christians frequently the targets of religious prejudice they were to become its perpetrators soon enough but much of what they wrote sought either directly or indirectly to address this problem In this study Paul A Holloway applies the findings of social psychology to the early Christian pseudepigraphon known as 1 Peter He argues that 1 Peter marks one of the earliest attempts by a Christian author to craft a more or less comprehensive response to anti Christian prejudice and its outcomes Unlike later Apologists however who also wrote in response to anti Christian prejudice the author of 1 Peter does not seek to influence directly the thoughts and actions of those hostile to Christianity but writes instead for his beleaguered coreligionists consoling them in their suffering and advising them on how to cope with popular prejudice and the persecution it engendered
