Dynamics of Poverty Alleviation Programmes Ajit Kumar Sinha,2002 With reference to Bihar and Jharkhand in India
Poverty, Chronic Poverty and Poverty Dynamics Aasha Kapur Mehta,Shashanka Bhide,Anand Kumar,Amita Shah,2018-07-31 This book discusses critical policy issues that need to be addressed if India wishes to achieve the SDG 1 based elusive goal of ending poverty in the country In its nine chapters it takes the readers through trends and estimates of poverty in India explains changes in the way it has been measured over time and the factors that lead to persistence of poverty draws attention to the fact that hunger is both a cause and an effect of poverty and has gender and age dimensions too The book revisits strategies that were successful in addressing poverty emanating from situations of conflict presents a discussion on migration as a critical coping mechanism among poor analyses the links between ill health and poverty as well as education and poverty to draw attention to the policy imperatives that need attention India s report card on poverty remains dismal even though there is recognition of the importance of reducing or eliminating or ending it at both national and global levels Despite rapid economic growth and improvement on a range of development indicators an unacceptably high proportion of India s population continues to suffer poverty in multiple dimensions SDG 1 or ending poverty in all its forms everywhere cannot be achieved unless policies and poverty alleviation programmes understand and address chronic poverty and its dynamics This requires that we estimate and understand the extent of poverty the factors that lead to people getting stuck in it and the ways this can be addressed It also requires understanding the dynamic nature of poverty or the fact that many of those who are poor are able to move out of poverty as well as the fact that many others who are not poor become impoverished These are the issues that are comprehensively examined and addressed in this book In addition to students teachers and researchers in the areas of development economic growth equity and welfare the book is also of great interest to policy makers planners and non government agencies who are concerned with understanding and addressing poverty related issues in the developing countries

Towards Sustainable Development Goal of Zero Hunger:

Exploring the Dynamic Relationships between Food Pricing, Agriculture, and Food Security Noshaba Aziz,Wioletta Żukiewicz-Sobczak ,Ruishi Si,2025-10-16 United Nations Sustainable Development Goal SDG 2 aspires to eradicate hunger by 2030 emphasizing the intricate relationships between agriculture food security and nutrition However this noble pursuit faces formidable challenges in emerging countries due to a confluence of international disruptions Climate change the COVID 19 pandemic and geopolitical conflicts like the war in Ukraine have triggered sharp spikes in commodity prices amplifying food security concerns particularly in developing nations The Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations recently reported the highest global food price increase since the 1990s in March This commodity price inflation in turn reverberates across agriculture impacting not only a nation s economy but also its food production capacity Elevated commodity prices drive up the costs of agricultural inputs such as fertilizers pesticides and fuel compelling farmers to pass

these expenses on to consumers in the form of higher food prices Moreover country specific economic factors within the agricultural sector including land ownership technology adoption farming practices and infrastructure further complicate the food security landscape Therefore the intricate interplay between commodity price inflation agriculture and food security is significantly influenced by a nation s unique economic dynamics within its agricultural sector Effectively addressing these challenges necessitates a blend of international and domestic policy measures to ensure that the benefits of agricultural progress reach the broader population , FDI in Mauritius and Sub Saharan Africa: Assessing the spillovers effect in a dynamic framework Dr Sheereen Banon Fauzel, Rural Livelihoods and Poverty Reduction Policies Frank Ellis,H. Integrating Climate Resilience into Poverty Reduction Strategies. A case Study of Katete District, Zambia Maliro Ngoma, 2025-11-12 Doctoral Thesis Dissertation from the year 2024 in the subject Didactics Politics Political Education grade PhD course Education Management and Administration language English abstract This thesis examines how climate resilience can be integrated into poverty reduction strategies at district scale using Katete District Eastern Province Zambia as a case study. It combines a quantitative household baseline survey (n = 1 200), geospatial exposure mapping, participatory village capacity assessments, key informant interviews, and focus group discussions. The study documents spatial and social patterns of exposure, sensitivity, and adaptive capacity, identifies institutional and programmatic gaps in existing poverty reduction and social protection systems, and evaluates comparative lessons from Ethiopia, Rwanda, and Malawi. Findings show that repeated climate shocks exacerbate poverty through reduced agricultural productivity, asset erosion, and heightened food and nutrition insecurity, with disproportionate impacts on women and youth. Current programs are fragmented and insufficiently shock responsive. The thesis proposes a set of integrated, evidence-based recommendations for Katete that combine predictable social transfers, climate-smart public works, targeted CSA packages, youth green skills development, and women's asset security measures, supported by an interoperable M-E system and localized climate information services. A pilot design, monitoring framework, and operational road map are presented to guide district adoption and phased scaling. The work contributes a transferable district-level methodology for targeting, monitoring, and evaluating climate-resilient poverty reduction interventions.

Providing universal access to social protection and health systems for all members of society, including the poor and vulnerable, is increasingly considered crucial to international development debates. This is the first book to explore, from an interdisciplinary and global perspective, the reforms of social protection systems introduced in recent years by many governments of low and middle income countries. Although a growing body of literature has been concerned with the design and impact of social protection, less attention has been directed towards analyzing and explaining these reform processes themselves. middle income areas and how it differs across countries both in terms of scope and speed of institutional change Exploring the major domestic and international factors affecting the political feasibility of social protection reform the book outlines the successes and failures of recent reform initiatives This invaluable book combines contributions from both academics and practitioner experts to give students researchers and practitioners in the fields of social security economics law and political science an in depth understanding of political reform processes in developing countries

Social Capital, Micro and Small Enterprises and Poverty-alleviation in East Africa Mary Njeri Kinyanjui, Meleckidzedek Khayesi, 2005 This book based on an extensive review of literature and fieldwork contributes to the growing discourse on social capital by examining its use as a strategy for an entry and stay in trade manufacturing transport and micro and small enterprises in East Africa A social capital model in formulated and tested The book shows how social capital has been articulated and utilized through networks relationships norms values and actions to facilitate entry and stay in these enterprises The book provides details on how entrepreneurs constantly construct their social capital and evolve business logic and practice that is used in business transactions The book does not only focus on theory and empirical findings but also derives lessons for poverty alleviation strategies It reveals that there are limitations to the application of social capital when it comes to interaction and conflict between different stakeholders in transport enterprises The political economy model was found to be appropriate in such a case indicating that the social capital model can be used in combination with other theoretical frameworks South Asia as a Dynamic Partner William E. James, Robert McCleery, 1994 The book comprises papers presented at the conference on South Asia as a Dynamic Partner Prospects for the Future The conference is the outcome of a joint research project of the Indian Council for Research on International Economic Relations ICRIER Asian Journal of Agriculture and Development ,2012-12 Spatial Dynamics of Labor Markets in Brazil ,2005 There was substantial spatial variation in labor market outcomes in Brazil over the 1990s In 2000 about one fifth of workers lived in apparently economically stagnant municipios where real wages declined but employment increased faster than the national population growth rate More than one third lived in apparently dynamic municipios experiencing both real wage growth and faster than average employment growth These areas absorbed more than half of net employment growth over the period To elucidate this spatial variation the authors estimate spatial labor supply and demand equations describing wage and employment changes of Brazilian municipios They use Conley's spatial GMM technique to allow for instrumental variable estimation in the presence of spatially autocorrelated errors The main findings include 1 a very strong influence of initial workforce educational levels on subsequent wage growth controlling for possibly confounding variables such as remoteness and climate 2 evidence of positive spillover effects of own municipio growth onto neighbors wage and employment levels 3 an exodus from farming areas 4 relatively elastic response of wages to an increase in labor supply and 5 evidence of a local multiplier effect from government transfers
