Drinks For Driving:

You ... alcohol and driving United States. National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, 1977 A student manual presented in eight readings on the effects of alcohol on the body and on highway safety

Drink and drug driving law Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Transport Committee, 2010-12-02 18% of all drivers killed in road accidents are over the drink drive limit In 2007 based on coroners data but only approximately 3% of drivers in the UK are stopped and tested for alcohol compared to the European average of 16% This report calls for the police to be given an additional power to permit preliminary breath tests as part of any designated drink drive enforcement operation Currently the police may stop any vehicle but can only test the driver's breath if there is an element of suspicion There is concern that a reduction in the blood alcohol concentration limit would send out mixed messages but that the aimed for effectively zero limit is too great a step at present Instead concentration should be on stricter enforcement of the current limit and public education It is felt that the success of Great Britain's drink driving policy to date is largely attributable to the deterrent effect of the current 12 month mandatory disqualification penalty and the Committee supports retaining that penalty The committee also calls for the improvement of the detection of drug driving and to strengthen public perception about the likelihood of drug drivers being caught by the police The Government's commitment to install drug screening devices in every police station by 2012 is welcomed though this interim measure should not eclipse the Government's aim over the medium term to develop and type approve a drug screening device for use at the roadside drawing on relevant experience of doing this in the other parts of the world

National Survey of Drinking and Driving: Attitudes and Behavior: 2001. Volume II: Methods Report D. Royal, 2003

Drink-driving David Riley, 1991 In a national survey 1 700 drivers were interviewed about their beliefs attitudes and behaviour towards drinking and driving The aim of the research was to examine the extent to which differences in drink driving are linked with actual variations in level of police activity and with differences in drivers perceptions of drink drive enforcement Comparing areas with a much lower than average rate of breath testing and areas with a much higher than average rate revealed a clear difference Using a range of different measures of driving with excess alcohol the study showed that drivers in the high enforcement areas were significantly less likely to drink and drive than drivers in low enforcement areas Results suggested that high levels of enforcement had their effect through reinforcing social pressures against drink driving and increasing awareness of greater accident risks for alcohol impaired drivers This report suggests a trial scheme in one or more police force areas as an initiative of this nature would provide a firmer basis on which to balance the operational and resource requirements against the benefits achieved in reducing drink driving incidents

Denney,1997-01 There is currently much debate about the present UK drink driving limit and whether this should be lowered This book written by one of the country s leading experts on breath testing and alcohol analysis sets out the arguments for doing so supported by empirical statistical and circumstantial evidence It also promotes the idea that breath testing should be applied to cyclists and pedestrians as well as drivers The relationship between alcohol consumption and breath and blood alcohol levels is carefully explained Legal limits for drinking and driving are dealt with in relation to the possibility of being involved in an accident Legislation and international approaches to dealing with drink drive problems are discussed and the scientific aspects of alcohol measurement and analysis are dealt with in a clear unambiguous manner The text is liberally illustrated with photographs graphs and tables
