Border Dance T. L. Toma, 1996 Frank Reed is a contemporary Prufrock a man who has lost his moral and emotional centers under the weight of the social and moral disintegration pervasive in society Dispatched from his Boston based company to the Mexican border with orders to negotiate a deal that would put profits in American pockets Reed finds himself on a personal odyssey deep into the Mexican interior Toma's characters both major and minor are complex ambiguous and multifaceted Frank's despair and moral confusion his tendency to sentimentality and his ethical imprecision are convincingly etched Toma's portraits of the Mexican functionary Garcia and his family are masterfully nuanced though drawn in broad strokes As the focus shifts from Boston to Mexico and back the narrative is propelled by parallel involvements of the major characters Frank's rediscovery of passion with the young Mexican woman Socorro is balanced at home by his wife's attraction to a neighborhood butcher and by their daughter's growing interest in a brilliant but alienated young emigre student As Frank struggles to reinvent the man he has become he becomes swept up in the plans of the young Mexican woman who is desperate to cross the border into what she perceives as a land of wealth and opportunity The extent of his middle aged angst is matched by the reach of her hope In this biting though often humorous first novel the American dream turns harsh divisions Examining works by Virginia Woolf Jenny Erpenbeck Olga Tokarczuk Herta and Paulina Aikin Anna Burns Chika Unigwe Maylis de Kerangal Magda Szabó Elena Ferranti Alki Zei Elif Shafak and Oksana Zabuzhko it uses an integrated interdisciplinary approach to combine literary readings with detailed historical and political understanding of cultural context Coming from many different cultures and histories these writers speak a common condemnation of all hierarchies of worth and of exceptionalist identities whether sanctified by religion nature or tradition Morris shows how their stories read here in translation also articulate a strikingly unified vision of a radical ecological understanding of human relations based on physical continuity and co existence rather than borders dividing an idealised us from a denigrated them
