Annelies Wilder-Smith

Born Into Brothels:

Born Into Brothels Zana Briski, 2004 In Calcutta's red light district over 7000 women and girls work as prostitutes. Only one group has lower standing: their children. In the face of abject poverty, abuse, and despair, these kids have little possibility of escaping their mother's fate or creating another kind of life. In their award-winning documentary film, directors Zana Briski and Ross Kauffman chronicle the amazing transformation of the children they come to know in the red light district. Briski spent years with the children and teaches them how to take pictures, giving them cameras, igniting artistic genius. The images they take are observant and insightful; more importantly, they reflect the morally empowering, politically volatile power of art as a liberating force.

Born Into Brothels Thinkfilm, 2004 While living in the red light district of Calcutta, documenting life in the brothels, New York-based photographer Zana Briski embarked on a project. She gave cameras to the children of prostitutes and taught them photography, awakening within them hidden talent and creativity and giving them a means to transform their lives. This is a tribute to the resiliency of childhood and the restorative power of art. As they begin to look and record their world through new eyes, the kids who society refused to recognize awaken for the first time to their own talents and sense of worth.

Immediations Pooja Rangan, 2017-05-18 Endangered life is often used to justify humanitarian media intervention, but what if suffering humanity is both the fuel and outcome of such media representations? Pooja Rangan argues that this vicious circle is the result of immediation, a prevailing documentary ethos that seeks to render human suffering urgent and immediate at all costs. Rangan interrogates this ethos in films seeking to give a voice to the voiceless, an established method of validating the humanity of marginalized subjects including children, refugees, autistics, and animals. She focuses on multiple examples of documentary subjects being invited to demonstrate their humanity: photography workshops for the children of sex workers in Calcutta, live eyewitness reporting by Hurricane Katrina survivors, attempts to facilitate speech in nonverbal autistics, and painting lessons for elephants. These subjects are obliged to represent themselves using immediation tropes that reinforce their status as the other and reproduce definitions of the human that exclude non-normative modes of thinking, being, and doing. To counter these effects, Rangan calls for an approach to media that aims not to humanize but to realize the full radical potential of giving the camera to the other.

Born Into Brothels Zana Briski, 2007 While living in the red light district of Calcutta, documenting life in the brothels, New York-based photographer Zana Briski embarked on a project by which she gave cameras to the children of prostitutes and taught them photography, awakening within them hidden talent and creativity and giving them a means to transform their lives. This companion curriculum introduces discussion and analysis of the social issues in the red light district of Calcutta as depicted in the film Born into Brothels. It demonstrates how students can use art to empower themselves and how to redistribute that power to others. It also examines discrimination and the right to education.

Media, Erotics, and Transnational Asia Purnima Mankekar, Louisa Schein, 2013-02-11 Drawing on methods and approaches from anthropology, media studies, film theory, and cultural studies, the contributors to Media Erotics and Transnational Asia examine how mediated eroticism and sexuality circulating across Asia and Asian diasporas both reflect and shape the social practices of their producers and consumers. The essays in this volume cover a wide geographic and thematic range and combine rigorous textual analysis with empirical research into the production, circulation, and consumption of various forms of media. Judith Farquhar examines how health magazines serve as sources of both medical information and erotic titillation to readers in urban China. Tom Boellstorff analyzes how queer zines produced in Indonesia construct the relationship between same sex desire and citizenship. Purnima Mankekar examines the rearticulation of commodity, affect, erotics, and nation on Indian television. Louisa Schein describes how portrayals of Hmong women in videos shot in Laos create desires for the homeland among viewers in the diaspora. Taken together, the essays offer fresh insights into research on gender, erotics, media, and Asia transnationally.

Portals of Promise Debbie Pushor, the Parent Engagement Collaborative, the Parent Engagement Collaborative, 2013-10-30. Working with parents is a significant aspect of educators' roles, yet it is rare to find curriculum in teacher education programs designed to prepare individuals to consider in philosophical, theoretical, and pedagogical ways who they will be in relationship with parents and why. Schools therefore remain hierarchical structures in which parents are marginalized in relation to decisions affecting teaching and learning. This book begins with Pushor's conceptualization of a curriculum of parents, a curriculum which explores beliefs and assumptions about parents, a vision for education in which educators work alongside parents and family members in the learning and care of children, and a desire for reform. She describes a curriculum of parents in the form of three graduate teacher education courses which she lived out in relationship with students. Graduate students then capture their experiences immersed in this curriculum: what they each took up, how it shaped their knowledge, attitudes, and practices, and how they lived it out as they returned to their classrooms, schools, and early learning centres. This book is a storied account of their intense immersion in a curriculum of parents and the resulting impact living that curriculum has had on who they are in relation to parents and families. It is an honest and vulnerable
