The Boston Contest of 1944 Jeffrey M. Diefendorf, 2015-03-05

During World War II many European government authorities and planners believed that the damage caused by bombing constituted a great opportunity to transform their cities Even as the fighting continued a great many plans were drawn up and this has been the subject of much scholarship However what is often overlooked is wartime planning in cities not damaged in the war United States cities were not bombed but in Boston one of its leading cities the last years of the war brought a major effort to encourage both new plans to modernize the city and also means of implementing those plans The wartime initiative to transform Boston had several sources Both the Great Depression and the war had led to major measures by the federal government to try to deal with fiscal challenges and the need for new housing for the many people who relocated during the war because of the creation of new industries to help the war effort Boston hoped it could benefit from these measures Moreover in the late 1930s Harvard University had become a key residence for figures important in modernist planning including Joseph Hudnut Walter Gropius and Martin Wagner These factors combined in 1944 to inspire what was called The Boston Contest Its goal was to suggest solutions to many problems found in the metropolitan area These issues included commercial and industrial developments housing transportation education recreation welfare urban finances metropolitan government and citizen participation in solving problems This book published in 1945 contains the top 3 prize winning entries and excerpts from 9 of the other nearly 100 entries It gives a fascinating insight into the developing ideas of urban planning in the United States at a critical juncture

City Bound Gerald E. Frug, David J. Barron, 2013-07-02

Many major American cities are defying the conventional wisdom that suburbs are the communities of the future But as these urban centers prosper they increasingly confront significant constraints In City Bound Gerald E Frug and David J Barron address these limits in a new way Based on a study of the differing legal structures of Boston New York Atlanta Chicago Denver San Francisco and Seattle City Bound explores how state law determines what cities can and cannot do to raise revenue control land use and improve city schools Frug and Barron show that state law can make it much easier for cities to pursue a global city or a tourist city agenda than to respond to the needs of middle class residents or to pursue regional alliances But they also explain that state law is often so outdated and so rooted in an unjustified distrust of local decision making that the legal process makes it hard for successful cities to develop and implement any coherent vision of their future Their book calls not for local autonomy but for a new structure of state local relations that would enable cities to take the lead in charting the future course of urban development It should be of interest to everyone who cares about the future of American cities whether political scientists planners architects lawyers or simply citizens Boston Statistics, ..., with Memorable Sites and Buildings, Etc ,1930 Poor's Financial Records ,1929 Index of All Reports Issued by Bureaus of Labor Statistics in the United States, Prior to March 1, 1902 United States.
