The Botany of Desire Michael Pollan, 2001-06-12 The book that helped make Michael Pollan the New York Times bestselling author of Cooked and The Omnivore's Dilemma one of the most trusted food experts in America In 1637 one Dutchman paid as much for a single tulip bulb as the going price of a town house in Amsterdam Three and a half centuries later Amsterdam is once again the mecca for people who care passionately about one particular plant though this time the obsessions revolves around the intoxicating effects of marijuana rather than the visual beauty of the tulip How could flowers of all things become such objects of desire that they can drive men to financial ruin In The Botany of Desire Michael Pollan argues that the answer lies at the heart of the intimately reciprocal relationship between people and plants In telling the stories of four familiar plant species that are deeply woven into the fabric of our lives Pollan illustrates how they evolved to satisfy humankind's most basic yearnings and by doing so made themselves indispensable For just as we've benefited from these plants the plants in the grand co evolutionary scheme that Pollan evokes so brilliantly have done well by us The sweetness of apples for example induced the early Americans to spread the species giving the tree a whole new continent in which to blossom So who is really domesticating whom Weaving fascinating anecdotes and accessible science into gorgeous prose Pollan takes us on an absorbing journey that will change the way we think about our place in nature The Botany of Desire Michael Pollan, 2003 Pollan tells the story of four domesticated species the apple the tulip marijuana and the potato and describes how each has thrived by satisfying humankind's most basic desires The Botany of Desire Michael Pollan, 2008 Every schoolchild learns about the mutually beneficial dance of honeybees and flowers the bee collects the nectar and pollen to make honey and in the process spreads the flowers genes far and wide This book demonstrates how people and plants have formed a similarly reciprocal arrangement He links four fundamental desires sweetness beauty intoxication and control with the plants that satisfy them the apple the tulip marijuana and the potato In telling the stories of four familiar species Pollan illustrates how the plants have evolved to satisfy humankind's most basic yearnings And just as we've benefited from these plants these plants have also benefited at least as much from their association with us So who is really domesticating whom from Publisher The Art of Public Writing Zachary Michael Jack, 2020-10-28 Today's professionals recognize the need to elevate written communication beyond argument driven pedantry political polemic and obtuse pontification Whether the goal is to write the next serious work of best selling nonfiction to develop a platform as a public scholar or simply to craft clear and concise workplace communication The Art of Public Writing demystifies the process showing why it's not just nice but necessary to connect with those inside and outside one's area of expertise Drawing on a diverse set of examples ranging from Charles Darwin's On the Origin of Species to Steven Levitt's Freakonomics Zachary Michael Jack offers invaluable advice for researchers scholars and working professionals determined to help interpret field specific debates for wider audiences address complex issues in the public sphere and successfully engage

Literature and the Renaissance Garden from Elizabeth I to Charles II Amy L. Tigner, 2016-05-13 Spanning the period from Elizabeth I's reign to Charles II's restoration this study argues the garden is a primary site evincing a progressive narrative of change a narrative that looks to the Edenic as obtainable ideal in court politics economic prosperity and national identity in early modern England In the first part of the study Amy L Tigner traces the conceptual forms that the paradise imaginary takes in works by Gascoigne Spenser and Shakespeare all of whom depict the garden as a space in which to imagine the national body of England and the gendered body of the monarch In the concluding chapters she discusses the function of gardens in the literary works by Jonson an anonymous masque playwright and Milton the herbals of John Gerard and John Parkinson and the tract writing of Ralph Austen Lawrence Beal and Walter Blithe In these texts the paradise imaginary is less about the body politic of the monarch and more about colonial pursuits and pressing environmental issues As Tigner identifies during this period literary representations of gardens become potent discursive models that both inspire constructions of their aesthetic principles and reflect innovations in horticulture and garden technology Further the development of the botanical garden ushers in a new world of science and exploration With the importation of a new world of plants the garden emerges as a locus of scientific study hybridization medical investigation and the proliferation of new ornamentals and aliments In this way the garden functions as a means to understand and possess the rapidly expanding globe
