Child With Disabling Illness:

Helping Children with Ill Or Disabled Parents Julia Segal, John Simkins, 1996 When a parent falls ill or becomes disabled the pressures placed on family relations and friends can be very great Children in particular are sometimes forgotten as the adults struggle to cope yet often have to endure enormous anxiety The authors with compassion and common sense look at the range of issues that can arise including guilt anger frustration and fear They suggest positive ways in which these can be approached as well as looking at what children need to know and when they should be told issues of dependence separation and independence what issues emerge when other adults are involved the role of teachers and schools the sense of responsibility commonly felt by the child how to help with thoughts and feelings Publications of the Children's Bureau United States. Children's Bureau, 1942 White House Conference on Children in a Democracy, Washington, D.C., January 18-20, 1940, 1942 Children of Disabled Parents Tony Newman, 2003 This text explores the impact of parental disability on children especially where lack of support to families results in significant restrictions to children's day to day lives It reviews the literature on parental disability and its impact on children considers why concern for the children of disabled parents has emerged at this particular juncture of history explores whether the presence of parental disability affects the self reported health and well being of children discusses how children's strengths as well as their vulnerabilities can be identified and promoted and suggests how more effective social care services can be delivered to children in families affected by disability or chronic illness Final Report, 1941 Children and Youth in America, 1933-1973 Robert Hamlett Bremner, John Barnard, Robert M.
