Children In A Changing World:

Vietnam's Children in a Changing World Rachel Burr,2006-03-24 Like the majority of children living in the global South today a large number of Vietnamese youths work to help support their families International human rights organizations have focused on these children seeking to bring their lives into line with an understanding of childhood that is generally accepted in the developed world In this ethnographic study Rachel Burr draws on her daily observations of working children in Hanoi and argues that these youngsters are misunderstood by the majority of agencies that seek to help them Most aid programs embrace a model of childhood that is based on Western notions of individualism and bountiful resources They further assume that this model is universally applicable even in cultures that advocate a collective sense of self and in countries that do not share the same economic advantages Burr presents the voices and experiences of Vietnamese children in the streets in a reform school and in an orphanage to show that workable solutions have become lost within the rhetoric propagated by aid organizations The reality of providing primary education or adequate healthcare for all children for instance does not stand a chance of being achieved until adequate resources are put in place Yet organizations preoccupied with the child rights agenda are failing to acknowledge the distorted global distribution of wealth in favor of Western nations Offering a unique firsthand look at the experiences of children in contemporary Vietnam this book also provides a broad analysis of how internationally led human rights agendas are often received at the local level Children in a Changing World - a Book of Charts Golden Anniversary White House Conference on Children and Youth, Inc,1960 Children in a Changing World ,1960 Children in a Changing World Pearson Custom Publishing,1995-08-01 Children in a Changing World Edward Zigler,Matia Finn-Stevenson,1993 Children in a Changing World ,1988 Resources in Education ,1990 Care and Contagion in Shakespeare's Changing World Darryl Chalk,Rebecca Totaro,2025-10-16 Circuits of disease correspond to previously unconsidered practices of caregiving in early modern English drama in this new volume by Darryl Chalk and Rebecca Totaro They explore how the plays of Shakespeare and his contemporaries responded to and intersected with local and international ideas of communal care health management quarantine embodiment and theatricality The role of the spectators who found themselves represented in such themes of caregiving in times of crisis finds new meaning in Chalk and Totaro s framing Foregrounded by pioneering archival research chapters provide new insights into several Shakespeare plays performed on stages in London and at the court of King James I as well as several plays by his contemporaries including Webster Dekker and Middleton Contributors explore plague and privilege in Romeo and Juliet servants and caregiving in King Lear women and herbal medicine in The Winter s Tale astrology in The Duchess of Malfi and the humour that attaches itself to illness in The Roaring Girl These case studies expand our understanding of the caregiving that connected people across place and time as powerfully as the lived experience of disease did Children in Changing Worlds Ross D.
