Literacy Learning Journeys Helen Ross, 2025-02-21 As educators we want to help our learners flourish during their time with us both academically and socially. However, many dyslexic children and young people experience substantial barriers to accessing the curriculum, which can impact both their academic progress and overall wellbeing. This easy-to-read book equips educators with essential knowledge and practical guidance to ensure that all dyslexic students can access the curriculum effectively and fully express their ideas, creativity, and understanding. Drawing on research and the author's extensive experience, the book includes a comprehensive introduction to dyslexia and an overview of what it can look like at different stages of education, from the Early Years to Year 11 and beyond. Practical, evidence-based strategies to help students with dyslexia and specific literacy difficulties engage with the curriculum, make progress, and enjoy learning across their entire educational journey. A wealth of case studies and interview excerpts from students, parents, and teachers to contextualise their experiences. Reflection prompts and exercises to help you consider your own learners so that you can draw on strategies presented in this book as part of your own practice. Literacy Learning Journeys champions kindness and empathy and takes a positive approach to dyslexia to help children and young people thrive in the mainstream classroom. With easy-to-dip-in and out chapters and signposting to further reading and resources, it is essential reading for teachers, teaching assistants, and anyone working with learners with dyslexia.

Get Better at Anything Scott H. Young, 2024-05-07 The author of the Wall Street Journal bestseller Ultralearning explores why it's so difficult for people to learn new skills, arguing that three factors must be met to make advancement possible and offering 12 maxims to improve the way we learn. Life revolves around learning, in school, at our jobs, even in the things we do for fun. Yet learning is often mysterious. Sometimes it comes fairly effortlessly, quickly finding our way around a new neighborhood or picking up the routine at a new job. In other cases, it's a slog. We may spend hours in the library yet still not do well on an exam. We may want to switch companies, industries, or even professions but not feel qualified to make the leap. Decades spent driving a car, typing on a computer, or hitting a tennis ball don't reliably make us much better at them. Improvement can be fickle if it comes at all. In Get Better at Anything, Scott Young argues that there are three key factors in helping us learn. See: Most of what we know comes from other people. The ease of learning from others determines to a large extent how quickly we can improve. Do: Mastery requires practice. But not just any practice will do. Our brains are fantastic, effort-saving machines.

which can be both a tremendous advantage and a curse Feedback Progress requires constant adjustment Not just the red stroke of a teacher s pen but the results of hands on experience When we re able to learn from the example of other people practice extensively ourselves and get reliable feedback rapid progress results Yet when one or all of these factors is inhibited improvement often becomes impossible Using research and real life examples Young breaks down these elements into twelve simple maxims Whether you re a student studying for an exam an employee facing a new skill at work or just want to get better at something you re interested in his insights will help you do it better Illustrated American Magazine
