Chapter 15

1. Discuss the ways Japanese manufacturers control the distribution process from manufacturer to retailer.

Answer: Allow me to answer the following based on my understanding of the textbooks and the discussions with Doc Abacan.

Japanese manufacturers exert a high degree of control over the distribution process through several key practices:

- Manufacturers rely on a dense network of specialized middlemen. The Japanese distribution system is dominated by many small wholesalers and retailers, with consumer goods often passing through three or four intermediaries before reaching the consumer. This multi-layered structure allows manufacturers to closely manage and coordinate the flow of their products through the channel.
- Manufacturers establish strong economic ties and dependencies with wholesalers. Wholesalers act as agent middlemen, extending the manufacturer's control down to the retail level. Wholesalers provide a range of critical services like financing, physical distribution, inventory management, and promotion on behalf of the manufacturers. This creates a high level of interdependence and loyalty between manufacturers and their wholesale partners.
- The distribution system is also shaped by a unique Japanese business philosophy that emphasizes long-term relationships, harmony, and loyalty between channel members. This relational orientation makes it difficult for manufacturers to easily switch between distributors and retailers, further reinforcing their control.
- Japanese laws have historically protected small retailers and restricted the growth of larger retail formats. This regulatory environment has preserved the traditional multi-tiered distribution structure favored by manufacturers. While these laws are evolving, they have long served as a barrier to disruptive changes that could undermine manufacturer control.

In summary, Japanese manufacturers leverage a dense network of specialized middlemen, strong economic ties with wholesalers, a relational business culture, and protective regulations to maintain a high degree of command over the distribution process from end to end. This allows them to closely manage the flow of their products to consumers.
