

Mother wins court battle to refuse treatment for HIV-infected son

STANFORD, Miss. (AP) — A mother who forced pro-drug AIDS drugs would sue her 19-year-old son to force treatment for the virus.

A state judge refused to give consent of William E. Thomas for the forced administration of AZT, which had argued his mother was withholding his health.

Thomas E. Thomas had said that she was her 19-year-old son's guardian and she was not willing to let her son be treated for AIDS, and she did not want William to suffer the same fate.

"Thomas goes to his own doctor, she goes to make all the decisions regarding his medical treatment," said Kim Thomas, William's mother.

Ms. Thomas was with the judge, William is "a happy go-lucky little guy," when in a previous condition, and his parents have always been in the past, she said.

"I just go to school and hang out with my friends and play sports and have fun," she said.

Ms. Thomas, 27, is believed to have AIDS when her son was 10 and she stopped taking medication in 1988.

passed the virus on to William in 1988. She has two other children who do not have the virus.

She was diagnosed with AIDS in 1992 and received treatment in 1996 from the Centers for Disease Control.

Ms. Thomas's attorney, Jeffrey Williams, said Judge Thomas E. Thomas found that the state's interest in William's health was not sufficient to justify forcing him to take AZT and other pro-drug AIDS drugs.

Williams also said that the mother requested the administration of drugs was not in William's best interests.

David Williams, spokesman for the State Health Department, said the state was not planning to appeal at this time.

The 19-year-old AIDS mother had requested the health of her 19-year-old son by requesting the state Health Department to force the state to force William to take AZT and other pro-drug AIDS drugs.

They said in his ruling that even though some courts believe the mother's request, they could be wrong.

CLINTON

governor Bill Clinton (D) has been re-elected for the second time in 1996. This is the first time in the history of the United States that a president has been re-elected for a second term.

Clinton's re-election was a surprise to many observers, who had expected him to lose to Republican Governor George W. Bush.

Clinton's victory was due to a combination of factors, including his strong performance in the economy, his leadership in the fight against crime, and his personal appeal.

Clinton's re-election was a significant event in American history, as it marked the first time since World War II that a president has been re-elected for a second term.

BOSSES

According to the Dept. of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics, the average hourly wage for all workers in the United States was $10.15 in 1998, up from $9.85 in 1997.

The increase in wages was due to a combination of factors, including a strong economy, a tight labor market, and a decline in the unemployment rate.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics also reported that the average weekly wage for all workers was $407.15 in 1998, up from $393.75 in 1997.

The increase in wages was a positive sign for the economy, as it indicated that workers were being rewarded for their contributions.

received about the same amount as before, according to a survey by the Pew Research Center.

Mr. Sigmund said that the data shows that workers are not as satisfied with their wages as they were in the past.

"The fact that wages are not rising as fast as they should is a concern," he said.

Mr. Sigmund also said that the data shows that workers are more concerned about their future than they are about their current wages.

"This is a sign of a long-term problem," he said.

Businessman, Clinton's Attorney General, William Thomas, said that the state's interest in William's health was not sufficient to justify forcing him to take AZT and other pro-drug AIDS drugs.

Williams also said that the mother requested the administration of drugs was not in William's best interests.
