the poets ways of connecting the inner and outer worlds It challenges Paul de Man s assertion that the merging of the internal and the external can never be reached in poetic language The work also corrects misunderstandings about so called Chinese nature poetry existing in previous comparisons as well as contrasting inaccurate conclusions about the differences between English and Chinese poetry More than thirty representative poems of well known poets from each tradition are paired and discussed The related poetics of the two traditions are also compared

Textual analysis, by A. Golden Walt Whitman, 1968 Thinking with Assent Maria Rosa Antognazza, 2024-07-15 Epistemology is currently in ferment Ever since Plato the textbook story goes knowledge has been conceived as justified true belief but in 1963 Edmund Gettier blew a huge hole in this supposedly traditional account Six decades later however ongoing attempts to identify the conditions which turn belief into knowledge continue to face counterexamples and charges of circularity In response to this recurrent failure leading philosophers have begun exploring alternative accounts of knowledge This ground breaking book pushes the revolt against post Gettier epistemology in a radically new direction It begins by challenging the crude history of philosophy underling the entire Gettier paradigm A survey ranging from the pre Socratics to the mid twentieth century reveals that the allegedly standard or traditional analysis of knowledge is neither standard nor traditional In fact it is difficult to find major philosophers for thousands of years who regarded knowledge as a species of belief or belief as entailed by knowledge The standard view was rather that knowing and believing are distinct mutually exclusive mental states involving different mental faculties and playing distinct and complementary roles in our cognitive lives Having demolished the historical premise upon which the entire Gettier paradigm rests this book reframes elements of this age old consensus in contemporary terms which push knowledge first epistemology in a fresh direction Knowledge Antognazza argues is phenomenologically and ontologically prior to belief and crucially is not a kind of belief not even the best kind In turn mere believing is not a kind of botched knowing but a mental state fundamentally different from knowing with its own crucial and distinctive role in our cognitive life Contrary to the claim that belief aims at knowledge the specific contribution of belief to our cognition is that of aiming at truth when knowledge is out of our cognitive reach Knowing and believing are mutually exclusive but complementary ways of thinking with assent The book then applies this renewed paradigm to range of controversial issues including the taxonomy of belief the role of the will in belief testimony collective knowledge and religious epistemology Applying innovative methods to a vast range of materials on a rich variety of topics this is a rare philosopher and a work of exceptional interest
