not They also explore the broader question of why some entrepreneurs are successful and others are not After providing new comprehensive estimates of recent trends in minority business ownership and performance the authors examine the importance of human capital financial capital and family business background in successful business ownership They find that a high level of startup capital is the most important factor contributing to the success of Asian owned businesses and that the lack of startup money for black businesses attributable to the fact that nearly half of all black families have less than 6 000 in total wealth contributes to their relative lack of success In addition higher education levels among Asian business owners explain much of their success relative to both white and African American owned businesses Finally Fairlie and Robb find that black entrepreneurs have fewer opportunities than white entrepreneurs to acquire valuable pre business work experience through working in family businesses
