The Social Politics of Research Collaboration Gabriele Griffin, Katarina Hamberg, Britta Lundgren, 2013-06-07. The past two decades have seen an increasing emphasis on large and interdisciplinary research configurations such as research networks and centers of excellence, including those in Social Sciences and Humanities research. Little research has been undertaken, however, to understand how these new large research structures that are being called forth by research funders and research higher education institutions alike function socially and what the impact of operating within such structures is on those working within and those working with them. Past writers have discussed the intra-agentic operations of human researchers and the material laboratory environment in its broadest sense. This volume is concerned with the social politics of research collaboration in relation to six key positions: leaders of large research formations, leaders of sub-projects within large collaborations, participant researchers, junior and early career researchers, advisory board members, and those who look in from the outside such as researchers who are unfunded. It explores the mostly unacknowledged but critical aspect of social structures in research, discussing issues such as struggles over leadership styles, the marginalization of researchers working cross-disciplinarily, power hierarchies, and intellectual ownership, and the silencing of dissent in research.

Knowledge-Driven Governance Lihua Yang, 2018-11-19. This book explores a new model for addressing the central issue of environmental and other collective actions. An alternative to the classical models of central authority, privatization, and self-governance, it has provisionally been named expert and scholar based.

or knowledge driven governance The book also identifies seven working rules or design principles for successful knowledge driven governance and argues that the more strictly these rules are abided by the more successful this model of governance becomes Lastly it demonstrates that in addition to Lindblom s observed intellectually guided society and preference guided volition guided society there may be the possibility of a knowledge driven society in which knowledge or intellect plays a greater role The results obtained are supplemented by numerical calculations presented as tables and figures This book is intended for graduate students lecturers and researchers working in environmental management environmental science and engineering sustainable development collective action and public administration
