Developmental Psychobiology and Behavioral Ecology Elliott M. Blass,2012-12-06 The previous volume in this series Blass 1986 focused on the interface between developmental psychobiology and developmental neurobiology The volume emphasized that an understanding of central nervous system development and function can be obtained only with reference to the behaviors that it manages and it emphasized how those behaviors in tum shape central development The present volume explores another natural interface of developmental psy chobiology behavioral ecology It documents the progress made by developmental psychobiologists since the mid 1970s in identifying capacities of learning and con ditioning in birds and mammals during the very moments following birth indeed during the antenatal period These breakthroughs in a field that had previously lain dormant reflect the need to meet the infant where it is in order for behavior to emerge Accordingly studies have been conducted at nest temperature infants have been rewarded by opportunities to huddle suckle or obtain milk behaviors that are normally engaged in the nest In addition there was rejection of the exces sive deprivation extreme handling and traumatic manipulation studies of the 1950s and 1960s that yielded information on how animals could respond to trauma but did not reveal mechanisms of normal development In their place has arisen a series of analyses of how naturally occurring stimuli and situations gain control over behavior and how specifiable experiences impose limitations on subsequent development Constraints were identified on the range of interactions that remained available to developing animals as a result of particular events Brain Plasticity, Learning, and Memory B. E. Will,2013-03-13 This book is the result of the contributions presented at a conference held from August 30 to September 1 1984 at the Universite Louis Pasteur Strasbourg France This meeting was organized under the joint auspices of the European Brain and Behaviour Society EBBS and the Societe Fran aise pour 1 Etude du Comportement Animal SFECA The objective of this meeting was to bring together an international group of participants to evaluate and to report on recent research in three broad and overlapping fields within the general theme of the relationships between brain plasticity and learning and memory These three fields are developmental plasticity adaptive plasticity and restorative plas tici ty Al though the boundaries between these fie Ids are a rna t ter of debate see Introduction they have been retained as the major sections of this volume the arrangement of which roughly parallels that of the meeting We believe and very much hope that the contents of this volume convey an internal consistency despite the diversity of the material presented Biology of Behaviour Donald M.
