

GUIDANCE FOR INVESTIGATORS
Social Science/Behavioral/Educational Research Protocol

A research protocol or proposal describes planned research activities. It is the plan submitted to an Institutional Review Board (IRB) for review and may be submitted to a sponsor for research support/funding. The research plan includes a description of the research design or methodology, how prospective research participants are chosen, a description of what will happen during the study and what data analysis will be used on the data collected.

The research plan may sometimes be a simple and brief explanation, particularly when describing an exempt, low risk, or a simple project. If the project is a student project there may be departmental proposal requirements and with slight alterations, that proposal can serve both purposes.

Basically, the protocol should describe the common question questions: Who, What, When, Where, How, and Why.

All items with an asterisk (*) are essential elements and must be addressed. If you use this document for your research protocol, please delete the above two paragraphs and other information that is not relevant to your project BEFORE you submit it to the IRB.

Project title*

Name of principal investigator*

Name of co-investigator(s) (includes student researchers if this is a student-run project*)

Protocol Version Date* (can be placed in the footer along with the page numbers)

1. Background/Rationale/Literature Review* - basis for doing the research study. Explain why the research should be done, is interesting to the field and has value etc. There is no need for an extensive literature review for a simple study. The literature review can be the bibliography compiled to support the research question.
2. Hypothesis/Key Questions* – define the hypothesis; the key questions being asked in the research study
3. Research Objectives and Purpose – provide additional goals and rationale expanding upon the hypothesis, this can be combined with the Hypothesis section
4. Research Methods* – describe the study procedures; what will subjects be asked to do.
  - Study design: Explain the study design and choice of research methodology.
  - Statistical bias: Measures taken to avoid bias (if relevant). If random sample, how will sample be chosen?
  - Study procedures: What will happen to the people participating in the study? If there is deception involved, describe how subjects are deceived and the debrief processes.
  - Study duration: How long will the study last / expected duration of subject participation?
  - Standard tools: Will any standard tools be utilized (Depression Inventory)? (If applicable)
