A Cotswold Village Arthur Gibbs, 2016-09-01 PREFACE TO THE FIRST EDITION To those of my readers who have ever lived beside a stream or in an ancient house or time honoured college there will always be a peculiar charm in silvery waters sparkling beneath the summer sun To you the Gothic building with its carved pinnacles its warped gables its mullioned casements and dormer windows the old oak within the very inglenook by the great fireplace where the old folks used to sit at home the ivy trailing round the grey walls the jessamine roses and clematis that in their proper seasons clustered round the porch to you all these things will have their charm as long as you live Therefore if these pages appeal not to some such it will not be the subject that is wanting but the ability of the writer It is not claimed for my Cotswold village that it is one whit prettier or pleasanter or better in any way than hundreds of other villages in England I seek only to record the simple annals of a quiet old fashioned Gloucestershire hamlet and the country within walking distance of it Nor do I doubt that there are manor houses far more beautiful and far richer in history even within a twenty mile radius of my own home For instance the ancient house of Chavenage by Tetbury or in the opposite direction
