A Farewell To Alcohol:

A Farewell to Alcohol McIlwain, William, 1974      A Guide for Physician Training in Substance Abuse United States. Veterans Administration. Office of Academic Affairs, 1983      Treatment and Rehabilitation of the Chronic Alcoholic Benjamin Kissin, 2012-12-06

The present volume contains a large variety of treatment approaches to the long term rehabilitation of the alcoholic ranging from the biological to the physiological to the psychological to the social The multiplicity of proposed therapies each of which has its strong proponents suggests that alcoholism is either a complex medical social disease syndrome requiring a multipronged treatment approach or a very simple illness for which we have not yet discovered the remedy The latter may indeed be true but we cannot use what we do not know and must use what we do know We do however have the obligation to be responsible in our treatment to provide the best that is known at this time and to be discriminating in our prescription of appropriate treatment for individual patients If there is one conclusion we would like to offer in our preface it is that alcoholics constitute a markedly heterogeneous population with widely disparate needs for whom at least at our present level of knowledge a broad spectrum of treatment modalities is necessary If this is true then probably most of this book has validity With this volume on the treatment and rehabilitation of the chronic alcoholic we bring to completion our five volume series The Biology of Alcoholism As the title of the present volume indicates we have departed from our original intention to deal solely with biological aspects of the syndrome and have attempted rather to produce a more comprehensive work

Recent Developments in Alcoholism Marc Galanter, 2013-11-22

From the President of the Research Society on Alcoholism In recent years increasingly convincing evidence in support of a biobehavioral conceptual model of the etiology of alcoholism has emerged In this model the disorder is perceived as arising from the interaction of genetic/biological vulnerability and psychosocial risk Drinking or alcohol seeking is a metric trait Alcoholism which is a state of abnormally intense alcohol seeking behavior that over time leads to the alcohol dependence syndrome lies at the extreme high end of this quantitative measure Metric traits are influenced by multiple genes the extent of genetic loading of biological risk for alcoholism would be different in different individuals Added to this kind of variability is the wide range of options for exposure to the psychosocial risk factors of heavy drinking provided by modern society Further environmental provocation also changes when life events change It is not surprising therefore from the combination of the kinds of genetic and environmental variability described above that there is a wide array of patterns of expression of the disorder alcoholism referred to by some as alcoholisms In the search for understanding of underlying mechanisms and rational bases for potential therapy it is important to focus our attention on the final common pathway of this disorder alcohol seeking behavior This series ever since its beginning in 1983 has been sensitive to the complexities of the interaction between biological and psychosocial risk factors in alcoholism
