Bertrand Edward Dawson 1st Viscount Dawson of Penn, 1938 Autographed photograph England Bertrand Edward Dawson 1st Viscount Dawson of Penn 9 March 1864 7 March 1945 was a physician to the British Royal Family and President of the Royal College of Physicians He held the office of Physician in Ordinary to King George V until 1936 On the night of 20 January 1936 King George was dying from bronchitis and his end was hastened by Lord Dawson who gave him a lethal injection of cocaine and morphine At about 11 o'clock it was evident that the last stage might endure for many hours unknown to the patient but little comporting with the dignity and serenity which he so richly merited and which demanded a brief final scene Hours of waiting just for the mechanical end when all that is really life has departed only exhausts the onlookers and keeps them so strained that they cannot avail themselves of the solace of thought communion or prayer I therefore decided to determine the end and injected myself morphia gr 3 4 and shortly afterwards cocaine gr 1 into the distended jugular vein The reason for his action which Dawson frankly admits in his diary was to ensure that the announcement of the king's death should appear first in the morning edition of The Times and not in some lesser publication later in the day To make doubly sure that this would happen Dawson telephoned his wife in London asking her to let The Times know when the announcement was imminent When this appeared in the Daily Telegraph a reader wrote in recalling a doggerel verse in circulation during Dawson's life Lord Dawson of Penn Killed many men That's why we sing God Save the King Dawson's public stance on euthanasia was expressed later that year when he opposed a move in the Lords to legalise it because it belongs to the wisdom and conscience of the medical profession and not to the realm of law In 1986 The contents of Dawson's diary were made public for the first time in which he clearly acknowledged what he had done which was described by a medical reviewer in 1994 as an arrogant convenience killing Dawson of Penn Francis Watson, 1950 A Digest of the Decisions of the Courts of the State of Pennsylvania from ... Frederick Charles Brightly, 1877
