Relations Between Branches

Evaluate the extent to which parliament is still sovereign (30 marks)

Sovereign	Not Sovereign
DEVOLUTION <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Some powers transferred to Scotland, Wales & Northern Ireland but sovereignty still with parliament Only gave them limited powers e.g. control of education, health, housing. Important issues still with parliament so still sovereign e.g. defence, national security, foreign policy Devolved powers can be taken back and parliament can collapse assemblies e.g. happened in Northern Ireland twice 	DEVOLUTION <ul style="list-style-type: none"> In reality, transfer of power has diminished sovereignty for the foreseeable future as sovereignty has moved Devolved bodies are backed by referendums so would be hard and undemocratic to reverse it without another referendum, so unlikely to return to parliament Bodies have legislative powers so loss of legal sovereignty, which is permanent
REFERENDUMS <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Hasn't caused loss of sovereignty as parliament can choose to hold them Not legally binding so parliament makes final decision whether to follow result of public vote e.g. 2019 election Lib Dem manifesto said they'd remain in EU if they won despite the 2016 result saying leave 	REFERENDUMS <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Political suicide not to follow referendum e.g. Lib Dem got poor result after manifesto No examples in UK when referendums haven't been followed Held on constitutional reforms and has given sovereignty to the people Another referendum usually required to reverse first decision so semi-entrenched and unlikely to be ignored e.g. parliament couldn't leave EU after 1975 result
EXECUTIVE <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Increased role of parliament in government e.g. in 2013 Cameron consulted parliament on proposal to use military in Syria but parliament denied Suggests parliament still sovereign, especially if government has small or no majority Executive can experience defeats in minority governments e.g. May suffered 33 in short-lived time in government 	EXECUTIVE <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Executive power grown recently, especially if large majority (common under FPTP) Current government have large majority so they have political and legal sovereignty not parliament Executive can rely on MPs to approve legislation even if unpopular as (a) control timetable, (b) enjoy the government payroll vote, (c) have large number of patronage and prerogative powers, (d) can overrule House of Lords
