Children's Drawings Iconic Coding Of The Environment:

Children's Drawings Martin Krampen, 2013-06-29 This book is dedicated to all those who love children and their wonderful often surprising drawings This means it addresses all those interested in their developing capacity to produce iconic signs parents teachers child psychologists artists architects since building drawings are treated here and semioticians at large to name but a few potential readers Because of the broad audience I tried to keep scientific jargon to a minimum Whenever this was unavoidable I tried to explain the terms in such a way that even beginners in psychology could understand my arguments I received the first impulse to think about a book like this from the International Year of the Child declared by the UN in 1979 In a first phase of the project I obtained drawings of the six different building types treated in this book from more than 100 children aged 3-12 years in Turkey during a stay there as part of the faculty of Architecture of the Karadeniz Technical University in Trabzon under the auspices of the UN ESCO UNDP program TUR 75 012 My special thanks go to Dr Erdem Aksoy then president of the university and Dr Ozgontil Aksoy then dean of the faculty of Architecture and Civil Engineering for their encouragement to carry out the project I would also like to thank Dr Kutzal Oztirk Sevinc Ertirk Ali Ozbilen Hasan Saltik together with all the teachers in nursery and elementary schools in and around Trabzon who helped to collect the drawings

Children's Environments, 1992 Drawing for Science Education Phyllis Katz, 2017-03-23 This book argues for the essential use of drawing as a tool for science teaching and learning The authors are working in schools universities and continual science learning CSL settings around the world They have written of their experiences using a variety of prompts to encourage people to take pen to paper and draw their thinking sometimes direct observation and in other instances their memories The result is a collection of research and essays that offer theory techniques outcomes and models for the reader Young children have provided evidence of the perceptions that they have accumulated from families and the media before they reach classrooms Secondary students describe their ideas of chemistry and physics Teacher educators use drawings to consider the progress of their undergraduates understanding of science teaching and even their moral ethical responses to teaching about climate change Museum visitors have drawn their understanding of the physics of how exhibit sounds are transmitted A physician explains how the history of drawing has been a critical tool to medical education and doctor patient communications Each chapter contains samples insights and where applicable analysis techniques The chapters in this book should be helpful to researchers and teachers alike across the teaching and learning continuum The sections are divided by the kinds of activities for which drawing has historically been used in science education An instance of observation Audubon Linnaeus A process how plants grow over time what happens when chemicals combine Conceptions of what science is and who does it Images of identity development in science teaching and learning

Children's Images of Identity Jill Brown, Nicola F. Johnson, 2015-06-25 The understandings which children have of Indigenous identity provide means by which to explore the ways in which Indigenous identity is both projected and constructed in society These understandings play a powerful part in the ways in which Indigenous peoples are positioned in the mainstream society with which they are connected The research presented in this edited collection uses children's drawings to illuminate and explore the images children both mainstream and Indigenous have of Indigenous peoples The data generated by this process allows exploration of the ways in which Indigenous identity is understood globally through a series of locally focussed studies connected by theme and approach The data serves to illuminate both the space made available by mainstream groups and aspects of modernity accommodated within the Indigenous sense of self Our aim within this project has been to analyse and discuss the ways in which children construct identity both their own and that of others Children were asked to share their thoughts through drawings which were then used as the basis for conversation with the researchers In this way the interaction between mainstream modernity and traditional Indigenous identity is made available for discussion and the connection between children's lived experiences of identity and the wider global discussion is both immediately enacted and located within broader international understandings of Indigenous cultures and their place in the world

Visual Arts Research ,2000 Children in the Prehistoric Puebloan Southwest Kathryn Ann Kamp,Society for American Archaeology. Annual Meeting,2002 Is there evidence of children in the archaeological record Some would answer no that subadults can only be distinguished when there is osteological confirmation Others might suggest that the reason children don t exist in prehistory is because no one has looked for them much as no one had looked for women in the same context until recently Focusing on the Southwest contributors to this volume attempt to find some of those children or at least show how they might be found They address two issues what was the cultural construction of childhood What were childrens lives like Determining how cultures with written records have constructed childhood in the past is hard enough but the difficulty is magnified in the case of ancient Puebloan societies The contributors here offer approaches from careful analysis of artifacts and skeletal remains to ethnographic evidence in rock art Topics include ceramics and evidence of child manufacture and painting cradleboards evidence of child labor and osteological evidence of health conditions
