Cinema, Space, and Polylocality in a Globalizing China Yingjin Zhang, 2009-10-09 In this milestone work prominent China film scholar Yingjin Zhang proposes polylocality as a new conceptual framework for investigating the shifting spaces of contemporary Chinese cinema in the age of globalization Questioning the national cinema paradigm Zhang calls for comparative studies of underdeveloped areas beyond the imperative of transnationalism The book begins by addressing theories and practices related to space place and polylocality in contemporary China before focusing on the space of scholarship and urging scholars to move beyond the current paradigm and explore transnational and comparative film studies This is followed by a chapter that concentrates on the space of production and surveys the changing landscape of postsocialist filmmaking and the transformation of China's urban generation of directors Next is an examination of the space of polylocality and the cinematic mappings of Beijing and a persistent reel contact with polylocality in hinterland China In the fifth chapter Zhang explores the space of subjectivity in independent film and video and contextualizes experiments by young directors with various documentary styles Chapter 6 calls attention to the space of performance and addresses issues of media and mediation by way of two kinds of playing the first with documentary as troubling information the second with piracy as creative intervention The concluding chapter offers an overview of Chinese cinema in the new century and provides production and reception statistics Combining inspired critical insights original observations and new information Cinema Space and Polylocality in a Globalizing China is a significant work on current Chinese film and a must read for film scholars and anyone seriously interested in cinema more generally or contemporary Chinese culture 张英进,2002 Encyclopedia of Chinese Film Zhiwei Xiao,Yingjin Zhang,2002-06-01 The Encyclopedia of Chinese Film one of the first ever encyclopedias in this area provides alphabetically organized entries on directors genres themes and actors and actresses from mainland China Hong Kong and Taiwan as well as 300 film synopses Great care has been taken to provide solid cultural and historical context to the facts The alphabetical entries are preceded by a substantial historical section incorporating material on the the main studios and analysing the impact of Chinese film abroad as well as at home in recent years This Encyclopedia meets the needs equally of the film studies scholar the student of Chinese culture the specialist in Chinese film the curious viewer wanting to know more Additional features include comprehensive cross references and suggestions for further reading a list of relevant websites a chronology of films and a classified contents list three indexes one of film and tv titles with directors names and year of release one of names including actors writers directors and producers and one of studios all with pinyin romanizations a glossary of pinyin romanizations Chinese characters and English equivalents to aid the specialist in moving between Chinese titles and English translations 张英进,2008-10-02 Chinese Poetry in Times of Mind, Mayhem and Money Maghiel van Crevel,2008-10-02 Chinese Poetry in Times of Mind Mayhem and Money is a groundbreaking study covering a range of contemporary authors and issues from Haizi to Yin Lichuan and from poetic rhythm to exile bashing Its rigorous scholarship literary sensitivity and lively style make it eminently fit for classroom use Women's Poetry of Late Imperial China Xiaorong Li,2013-05-03 This study of poetry by women in late imperial China examines the metamorphosis of the trope of the inner chambers gui to which women were confined in traditional Chinese households and which in literature were both a real and an imaginary place Originally popularized in sixth century palace style poetry the inner chambers were used by male writers as a setting in which to celebrate female beauty to lament the loneliness of abandoned women and by extension to serve as a political allegory for the exile of loyal and upright male ministers spurned by the imperial court Female writers of lyric poetry ci soon adopted the theme beginning its transition from male fantasy to multidimensional representation of women and their place in society and eventually its manifestation in other poetic genres as well. Emerging from the role of sexual objects within poetry, late imperial women were agents of literary change in their expansion and complication of the boudoir theme. While some take ownership and de-eroticizing its imagery for their own purposes, adding voices of children and older women and filling the inner chambers with purposeful activity such as conversation, teaching, religious ritual, music, sewing, childcare, and chess playing, some simply want to escape from their confinement and protest gender restrictions imposed on women. Women's Poetry of Late Imperial China traces this evolution across centuries, providing and analyzing examples of poetic themes, motifs, and imagery associated with the inner chambers and demonstrating the complication and nuancing of the gui theme by increasingly aware and sophisticated women writers.

Chinese Literature James L. Claren, 2002. Chinese literature, one of the world's oldest and richest and consisting originally of poetry and later of drama and fiction, may be divided into three major historical periods that roughly correspond to those of Western literary history: the classical period from the 6th century BC to the 2nd century AD, the medieval period from the third century to the late 12th century, and the modern period from the 13th century to the present. This book presents an overview of Chinese literature as well as a comprehensive bibliography, primarily of English language sources, accessed by subject, author, and title indexes.

Chinese Literature, Essays, Articles, Reviews, 2000. A Newspaper for China? Barbara Mittler, 2020-03-23. In 1872, in the treaty port of Shanghai, British merchant Ernest Major founded one of the longest-lived and most successful of modern Chinese language newspapers, the Shenbao. His publication quickly became a leading newspaper in China and won praise as a department store of news, a forum for intellectual discussion and moral challenge, and an independent mouthpiece of the public voice. Located in the International Settlement of Shanghai, it was free of government regulation. Paradoxically, in a country where the government monopolized the public sphere, it became one of the world's most independent newspapers. As a private venture, the Shenbao was free of the ideologies that constrained missionary papers published in China during the nineteenth century. But it also lacked the subsidies that allowed these papers to survive without a large readership. As a purely commercial venture, the foreign-managed Shenbao depended on the acceptance of educated Chinese who would write for it, read it, and buy it. This book sets out to analyze how the managers of the Shenbao made their alien product acceptable to Chinese readers and how foreign-style newspapers became alternative modes of communication, acknowledged as a powerful part of the Chinese public sphere within a few years. In short, it describes how the foreign Shenbao became a newspaper for China.

China Review International, 2002. Subjectivity and Sexuality in Contemporary Chinese Feminist Writing Ruttapond Swanpitak, 2025-02-17. This book explores representations of female sexuality and subjectivity in contemporary Chinese fiction by three women writers published from 1986 to 2000 from the perspective of poststructuralist feminism. It discusses the representative works of authors Wang Anyi, Tie Ning, and Chi Li, who are well known in the Chinese literary field. However, their works have not to date been analysed through the poststructuralist feminism's notions of subjectivity, femininity, and transgression. This book then provides detailed analysis of each writer and draws comparisons between their works to provide an extended consideration of female sexuality and subjectivity within post-Mao Chinese fiction. In this respect, this book not only offers fresh insights into the three authors' fiction but also contributes to the feminist study of Chinese women's writing. Additionally, the research contributes to a better understanding of contemporary Chinese culture in relation to patriarchy, misogyny, feminism, differences, and resistance. It is relevant to scholars in the fields of China studies, Chinese literature, feminist literature, and gender studies. 王康, 2002

Lieberthal-Rogel Center for Chinese Studies (University of Michigan) Publications University of Michigan. Lieberthal-Rogel Center for Chinese Studies, 1962. Includes miscellaneous newsletters, student publications, calendars, bibliographies, and brochures. Also contains a set of monographs produced in various series by the center. Yearbook of Comparative and General Literature, 2000. Visual Culture in Shanghai 1850s-1930s Jason C. Kuo, 2007. Visual Culture in Shanghai 1850s-1930s is a study of formal and informal meanings of Haipai Shanghai School or Shanghai Style as seen through the paintings of the Shanghai school as well as other media of visual representation. The book provides us a point of entry into the nexus of relationships that structured the encounter between China and the West as experienced by the treaty port Chinese in their everyday life. Exploring such relationships gives us a better sense of the ultimate significance of Shanghai's rise as China's dominant metropolitan center. This book will appeal not only to art historians but also to students of history, gender studies, women's studies, and culture studies who are interested in modern China as well as questions of art patronage, nationalism, colonialism, visual culture, and representation of women. This book constitutes a significant contribution to the literature about a period and a city that were pivotal to the emergence of modern China. Richard K. Kent, Franklin Marshall College. This book navigates the complexity of Chinese modernity. It bridges conceptually and visually the China of the past to present-day Shanghai, the symbol of the urban economy of 21st-century China. Chao Hui, Jenny Liu, New York University. Shanghai was the rising and dynamic metropolis where many aspects of modernity were embraced with enthusiasm. Pictorial art was no longer the domain of the elite but professionalization, commercialization, popularization, and Westernization contributed to the dissemination of images to a larger and diverse audience. Minna T. M. University of Helsinki. Modern Chinese Literature and Culture, 2006. Research & Creative Activity, 1998. Directory of Published Proceedings, 2004. Bibliographic Guide to Psychology New York Public Library. Research Libraries, 1999.
